STUDENT LIFE

People learn through people
They learn as they are led
With fellowship and spirit
The Woodson Way returns

The thoughtfulness of the season
Shines through the Christmas Drive
Later sweethearts and roses
Enchanted winter's dream

A splash of yellow magic
As the scent of spring arrives
Lunches on the campus
Refresh our weary spirits

Together we stand assembled
Though some shall leave us soon
Their memories are etched on Woodson's Way
As Woodson is upon their own.

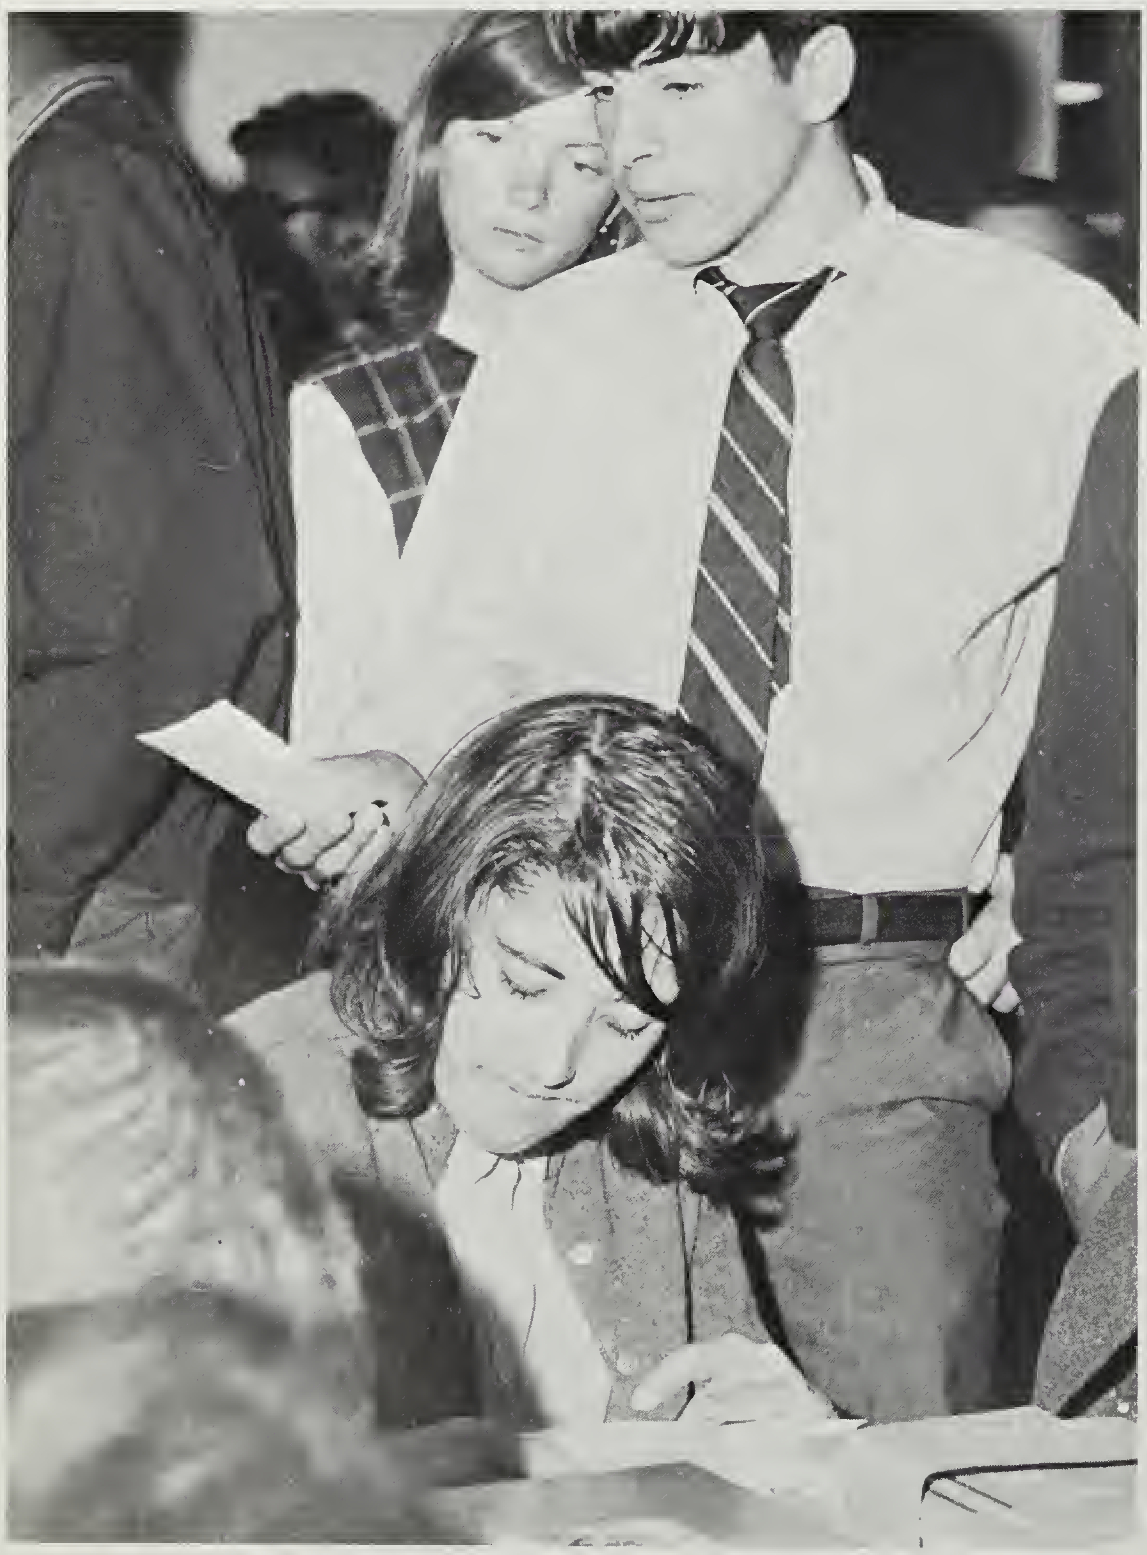
Emotions rise and tension builds as Freshmen and Juniors await the distribution of SCAT and STEP tests. From Monday to Wednesday they are engaged in tedious concentration to test their educational progress as the distant sound of the senior and sophomore sock hops echo down the corridors.

Is this where we sign up for PSAT tests?For Bill Stradtner and many of the juniors, the preliminary college boards begin the rush and excitement of preparing for college.



Free cokes, blaring music and comfortable clothes make up the privilege of senior play day. During the last day of the SCAT and STEP tests, the seniors enjoyed a half day of frolicking fun while freshmen and juniors worked on the final phase of their tests. The last two hours of the day were spent in class but the tunes of "Louie Louie" and "Satisfaction" drummed through their minds. The final hours of the day were spent in a much distracted classroom.

September 6, 1966 — WTW's halls lit with tanned smiling faces

If the magical novelty of the first week of school (minus the groans and "back to the old grind" laments) could be carried through the entire term, the skipping problem would be licked. The excited curiosity to see if that cute football player was in your class and the thrill of getting acquainted and re-acquainted was the perfect therapy to overcome the shock of picking up academic pressures after glorious summertime. But once the novelty of discovering which couples broke up, who bleached her hair (again!) and whether the Guidance Department received your letter to switch Chem Study to Creative Writing before the deadline wore off, students concentrated on more pressing matters—such as SCAT and STEP tests. These standardized monsters may not have thrilled to pieces the juniors and freshmen who sweated over them for three days, but they afforded seniors their closest taste of a senior privilege. While the juniors and freshmen labored, seniors bounced to the music of local talent, ate box lunches, and had a great time just goofing off. They were also given an opportunity to show off their newly gained responsibility by sponsoring the first dance of the year, "Back to School." Yes, those first few days were wonderful, but once the Federal Survey Forms, jammed lockers, and text books poured down, the honeymoon was over.

Dazed freshmen and forgetting upperclassmen descend stairs and trudge through the halls in search of those missing numbers from 400 to 500. The temporary buildings outside often cause much confusion.

After many grueling fourth periods spent exacting complicated marching formations, the 1966-67 Symphonic Band finds itself performing before masses of cheering Cavaliers during halftime.

The Varsity Football team anxiously awaits the kickoff of the second half of the Homecoming game against Falls Church. Woodson spirit aided the team in a 35-18 victory. Spirit of the Woodson spectators at all the football games was a major factor in the team's 8-2 season.

Full stands and an excited team: master key to a rousing game

Exuberant shouts of "Woodson, Woodson, we're for you!" resounded on home and away stadiums of the WTW Football games. Shouting, laughing, clapping, and sometimes even crying, depicted the "great" spirit of Woodson High.

Mainly through "Two Bits", the cavaliers cheered their team on through the '66 season. Though hoarse and exhausted, it wasn't surprising to see them rise again and again with the same enthusiastic spirit they portrayed at the beginning of the game.

Yell! Camey Hollewell attempts that eternal struggle to prompt the peak of spirit and enthusiasm in the crowd. Backed by the pep band and Joan Ansheles and the high stepping majorettes, the cheerleaders rely on their ability to rouse backing for the varsity football team. Camey's efforts aren't in vain. With the aid of all, the spirit of the crowd can be heard throughout the school.

Following Wayne Jacobs (50), center, Herb Foresburg (82), right end, rips through the goal post sign along with the rest of the victorious Woodson Team. The crowds roared at their entrance and in eight out of ten games, their conquering exit was also cheered.

Planet Og Nosdoow: the target as classes compete for furry

TOP: Steve Denison, Tim Aucreman, Ted Hatfield, Charley Ebing and John Kelleher boost sales with a cheerful note. The Pep band aroused the enthusiasm of the students on the bleachers.

For two rolling hours, Quota busters were entertained by the performance of the Fallen Angles. Their long hair and unusual clothing continued to be the center of conversation for several days. Although long hair is in, theirs is thought to be carried to an extreme.

creatures from another world

"Cavaliers onward! Reach Planet Og Nosdoow!" echoed through the halls as the battle cry for the 1966 Magazine Drive. At a launching assembly on October 6, X67 presented its master plan to conquer all in the drive—a gigantic, overwhelming missile! X70 shot ahead and surpassed the class goal. X69 held its bearings quite firmly during the competition, capturing second place in the finale. Much to the amazement of everyone, the two most boastful rivals, X68 and X67, landed on a rocky bottom for third and fourth places respectively.

Although the gravitational pull was extremely strong, the united forces of the four competitors resulted in achieving a goal that exceeded $20,000.

Who might these furry creatures be? Well to many of the diligent salesmen in the magazine drive it added to the decor of lockers and bedrooms. The Og Nosdoows were admired and cherished by all which helped us reach our goal on planet Og Nosdoow.

Classes compete in skits as well as sales. Imaginations are stretched to the peak to present an interesting and amusing skit. Space ships and scientists come forth as Woodson soars off to their goal on planet Og Nosdoow. As seems to be the custom, freshmen again come out on top with a total of $6,501.16, bringing the school total to $20,532.15.

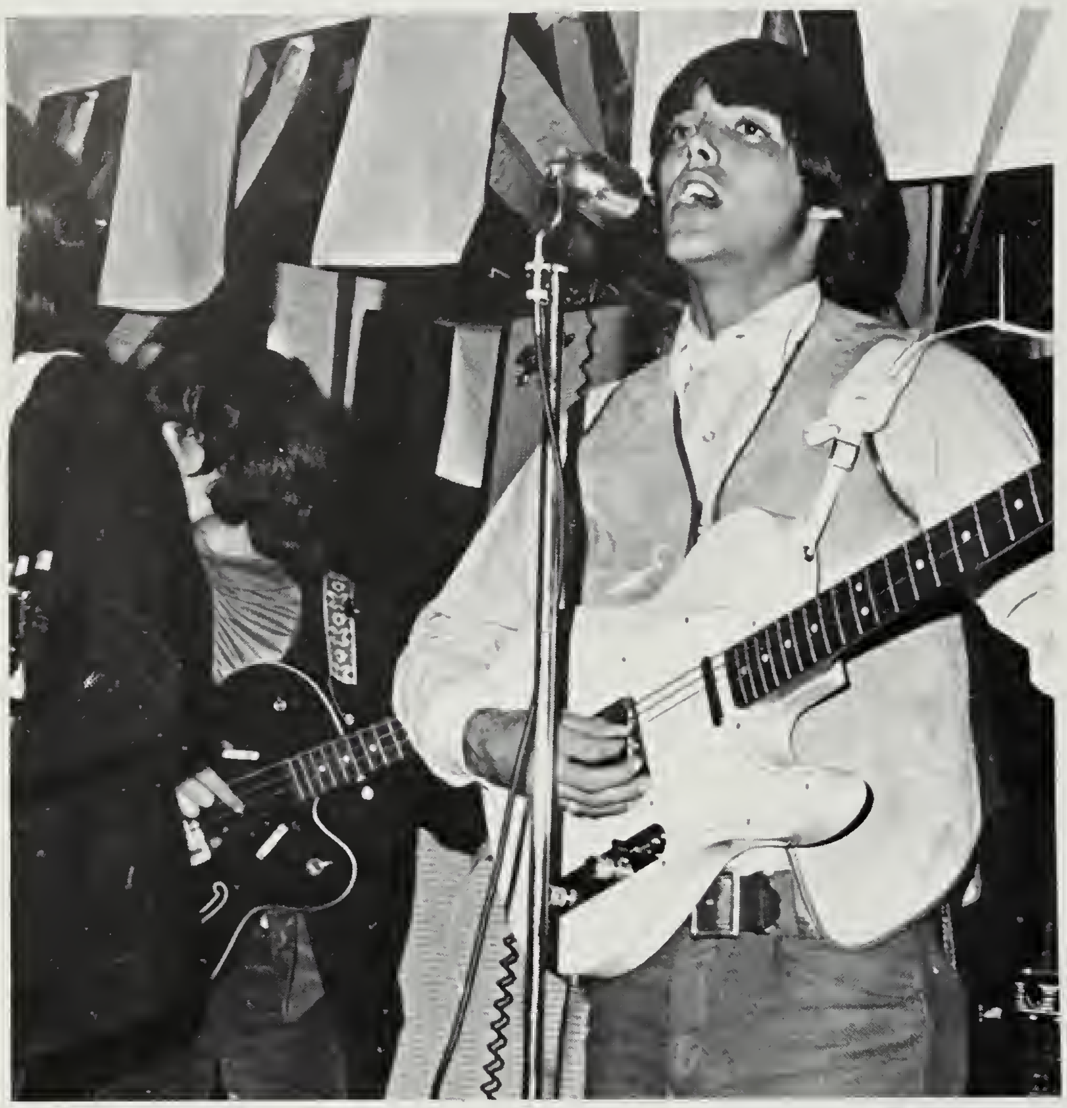
Bonfire, floats, and game: prelude to Homecoming weekend



"BEAT JAGUARS!" shouted Cavaliers as excitement glowed on faces old and new. Falls Church was beaten, 35-18, as our football team achieved another victory at our third annual Homecoming game. The brilliant performance of the Symphonic Band was completed as the Cavalettes ushered in Woodson's Homecoming Court led by last year's queen, Joyce Whetzel. Voices hushed in anticipation and eyes focused on the field as Mr. Phipps crowned the 1966 Homecoming Queen, Nancy Abt.

Majestically entitled "Days Gone By," Woodson's cafeterias reflected the genuine warmth of chivalry in bloom. Exquisite flourishes of red and gold adorning the walls, a scintillating fire in the hearth, and resplendent knightly armor turned back the pages of history to a setting of medieval splendor. The evening passed quickly amid the rhythmic beat of the English Setters while alumni mingled once more with Woodson students.

YEA SENIORS

The class of '67 achieves first place as its bus passes through the arch of the year to portray the theme of Days Gone By. Each year the competition becomes greater and ideas more ingenious. Weeks of preparation show off as the colorful and original floats emerge from those hidden barns where the works of art are created by the various classes and clubs.

Lee Corder (left) and Chuck Hoffman (right) show signs of confusion and dismay as they observe the contortions of the go-go dancers of Woodson. Both of them play football and are beginning to wonder which is more strenuous and daring, the survival on the football field or the dance floor.

Decked out in their best clothes, Dog Patch citizens, John Greene and Sharon Pfleger stand in line so that Marryin' Sam can perform the sacred matrimonial ceremony and bestow them with his best wishes.

Brenda Hall laughs at her partner Wayne Smith's uncanny sense of today's mod coordinate outfits, plaids, prints, and stripes. Wayne's smug look seems to say, "I don't care what I'm wearing, I've got you!"

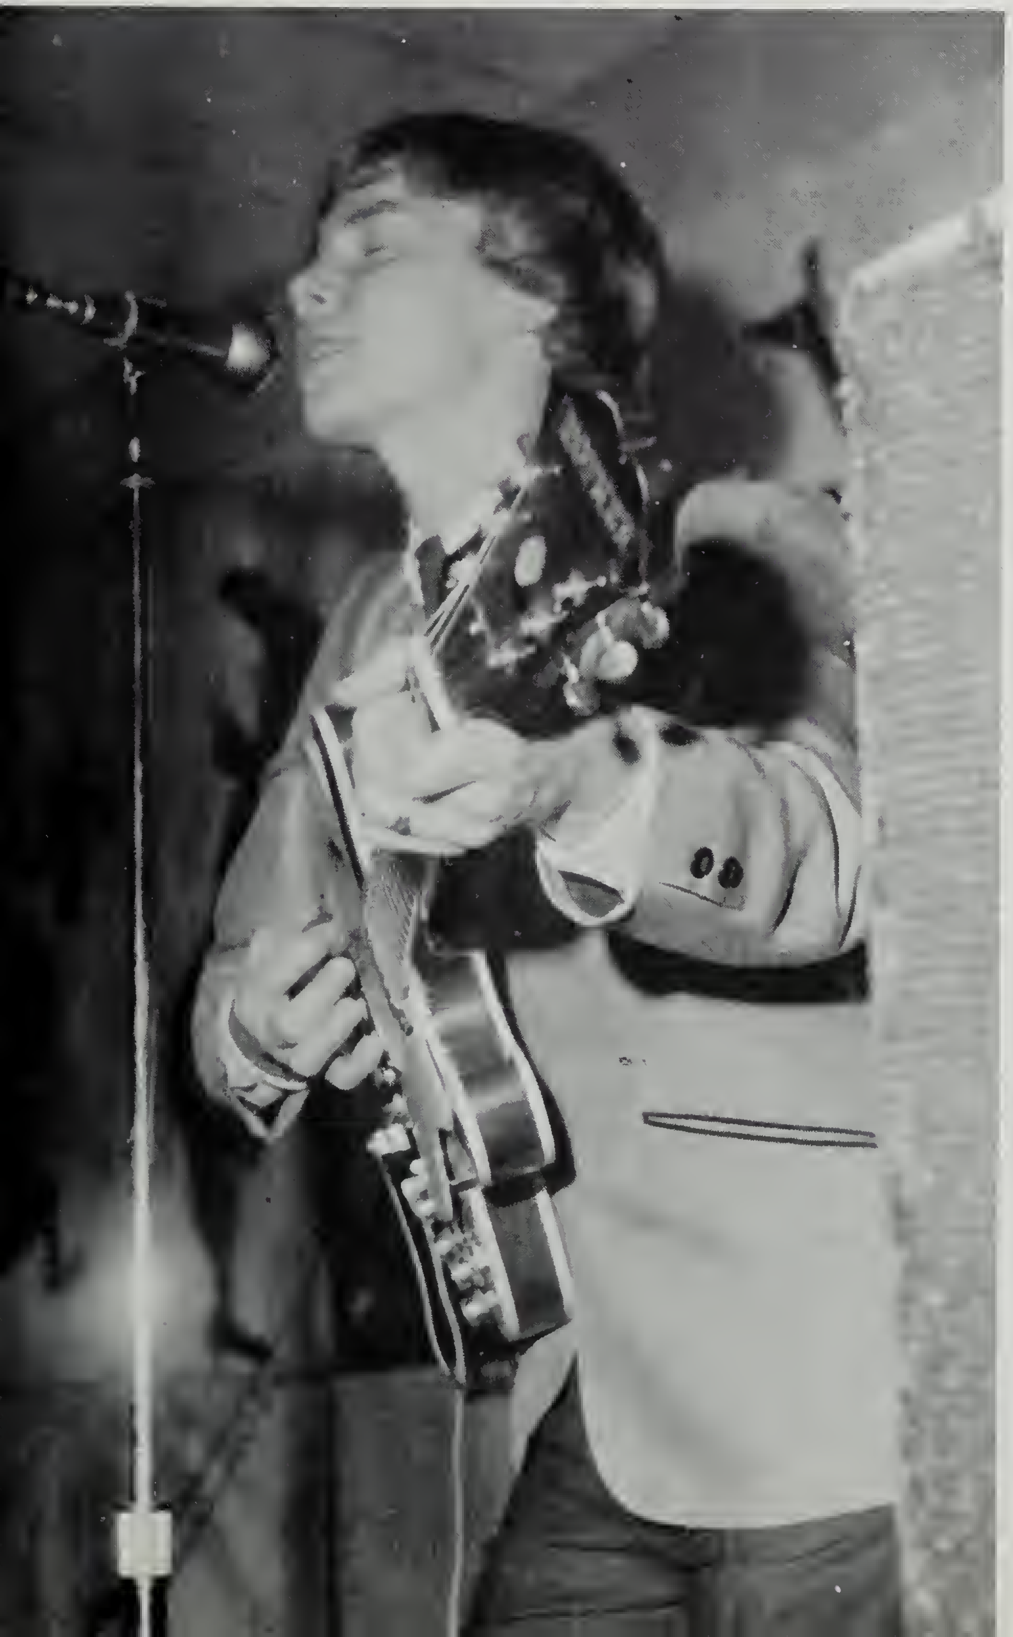
Brenda Regn shyly glances aside as she puts that ring upon Craig Koerbel's finger which will later be looped through his nose. On this day tables are turned and the females emerge to pounce upon their prey.

Dogpatch came to Woodson; Juniors' Sadie Hawkins Dance

"Will you marry me?" a young Daisie Mae proposed, flashing a doe-eyed look at her escort. Next to her, a fellow female conspirator was grabbing her choice by his curly locks and dragged him off to the preacher. No sooner had she touched him than Mammy Yokum sauntered up along side them and placed a firm hand on the girl's shoulder, "Don't you think you're a bit young?"

After weeks of brewing cider and husking corn, the Dogpatch Clan (better known as the Junior Class), began the final commotion for an old tradition of theirs—the Sadie Hawkins Dance. They provided the harvest moon, "mountain dew," and scenic countryside; couples supplied the fun. Throughout the evening, the "New Delphonics" bestowed the swinging beat to the grandest "Dogpatch" affair of the year.

Lost in his world of microphones, electric guitars, and highheel boots, the lead singer of the New Delfonics expresses himself through music and motion. Much feeling is portrayed in his pose.



TOP: Kathy Selph has time to pose while Nancy Ferris and other diligent workers try to complete Sadie Hawkins decorations before eight o'clock.

BOTTOM: Gary Moore registers surprise that a girl, Melinda Rathburne, had actually shanghaied him, a free-easy-going boy, into getting married at such a tender age.

Vibrant melodies, ranging from blues and jazz to present day hits, captivated an audience of willing listeners. Music plays a vital part in Woodson's assembly schedule. The experience of such bands as this one inspire the Woodson bands to bigger and better goals.

Visiting students and performers broaden the scope of WTW

The W. T. Woodson High School had the pleasure to open its doors to two foreign exchange students from two completely different cultures. They were Irene Ricci from Italy, and Trinh Quang Hanh from Vietnam. Their presence, made possible by the AFS Club and other fund-raising sources, promoted international understanding and goodwill in our country. Irene and Hanh may have learned a more important lesson—what others really think of us and WHY.

This year Woodson was well represented overseas. Kathy Smith, a WTW senior, spent this year in Torine, Italy—where her major courses of study were Latin, Greek, and Italian. Lauren Koskella and Carol Gilller, also seniors, plan to represent Woodson and the United States abroad this summer.

Humor and many gay melodies emerged from the mouths of these folk singers. From the Navy Band came three lively men who grabbed the admiration of all present at the assembly.

Trinh Hahn is distracted by photographers as Irene Recci presents the flag of Italy to Mr. Phipps. Each year the presentation takes place to bring the schools all over the world to a closer understanding and fellowship. At a later date Hanh presented the South Vietnamese flag and now the two fly side by side with the American, state, and school flags.

Uniforms, from colonial tri-cornered hats to our boys in blue, line the stage with the progression of the American flag. Sparkling brass and rumbling drums started feet tapping throughout the auditorium. Again the Marine Band promotes the armed services.

Christmas spirit was exhibited through decorations and snow;

Bill Orme has his doubts about the security of his job while climbing the walls of the school to put the candy canes in place. While Bill's task is one of nerve, Lauren Koskella and Anette Kretzschmar, at right, made use of their artistic talents to prepare the wreath. Members of the student government cabinet spent Saturday morning decorating the exterior of the school.

Student Government Special Activities Chairman, Bob Gattis, packs on a link of the "WTW Express" with the hope that one child will not be forgotten in the holiday hubbub of Christmas. Freshman shop classes spent innumerable hours in earnest preparation on their gift to the Christmas Drive. In conjunction with the Drive was the door decorating contest. First prize went to room 213 which was gloriously bedecked in the "12 Days of Christmas".

Candy canes and welfare drives climaxed the Christmas projects

"Giving is better than getting" was the philosophy from the 1966 Christmas Drive, sponsored by Student Government in cooperation with the Salvation Army. Food, clothing, and presents were collected through homerooms for over fifty needy families in the metropolitan area.

December 10 was a busy day for students on door-decoration committees. Prizes were offered for the most original theme, the best representation, and the most artistic doors. Hopes were either fulfilled or banished when the awards were finally announced. The U. S. Postal Service lost some business during the holiday season because Cavaliers became independent and established a school wide mailbox. Yuletide greetings flowed from this Student Government service to individuals in homerooms every day for a week before Christmas vacation started.

Mr. Williams' third period class takes time out from public speaking to indulge in the creative art of snowman construction. As true students of the stage Carolyn Smith, Richard Harris, Bryn Irving, Earl Masincup, Linda Strangohr, John Wolf, Elaine Harris, Lee Carr, and Rudy Farmer ham it up in front of the Cavalier photographer.

Nomads drift with couples along rhythmical Moonlit Sleighride

Seasonal merriment and bustle were momentarily obliviated during the Christmas Dance, "Moonlit Sleighride," as the complacency of white snow contrasted with a sable night and yellow moon created a restful haven. Entering Cafeteria A over an old fashioned bridge, dancers were enchanted by the fairytale splendor of fresh greenery amidst snow-covered hills. Cafeteria B's pleasant country home atmosphere created a feeling of peace and warmth.

The music of the "Nomads" flowed throughout the night while couples swung around the floor. When in hushed silence, the band began to play "You'll Never Walk Alone," the anticipation of the occasion mounted to a climax. Ten anxious girls and their escorts waited nervously while Kurt Jacobsen announced the 1966 Holly Ball Queen, Susan Morales.

The remainder of the evening passed quickly, and suddenly the magic disappeared—only the serene charm and tender memories remained etched in the minds of Woodson Students.

A week of nominations, preliminaries, and elections for the queen result in the coronation of Susan Morales to reign over the 1966 Christmas Dance. Her sparkling crown and bouquet of roses distinguish her from other members of the court. Susie's smiling face is seen by all in her variety of school activities.

Four dramatic productions prove complete success in '66-'67

Woodson was highly entertained during the '66-'67 year by plays ranging from bright musicals to suspenseful dramas. The Junior Class began the season with "Death Takes a Holiday", keeping the audience on the edge of their seats for the entire performance. Chal Martino, Wendy Jones, and Dave Chernock led the cast in a brilliant performance.

"Charlie's Aunt", a light comedy that touched the hearts of many, had the auditorium ringing with laughter. Dudley Wilson, in the lead role, gave a memorable performance that added to the enjoyable evening. The Drama Club presented many new actors and the "veterans" to the stage for this play.

Bringing the season to a magical close, the Senior Class presented "The Unsinkable Molly Brown". Penny Viglione, Jon Rumble, and scores of dancers brought back the bizarre life of a "Gay Nineties" atmosphere. After scurrying frantically backstage and achieving the final touches, the cast ended the performance in an overpowering aura of music and gaiety.

TOP: Poor Rod Burfield, rudely awakened by gun shots stumbled down the stairs to inquire as to "what the hell is going on."

"You're lookin' good there, Leadville," Tim Webb, Jeanne Rossow, and Jon Rumble rehearse their lines for the Senior Class Play.

I'm gonna learn to read and write," vows Molly Brown (alias Penny Viglione).

Extravaganza — Over 600 students come forth with the largest Melanie Maury plays with puppet Cheryl Newman in the Freshman II choir's toy store scene, filled with toy drums and Raggedy Anns.

The drums rolled as the curtain opened on the Extravaganza '67. It was truly a "Moment to Remember".

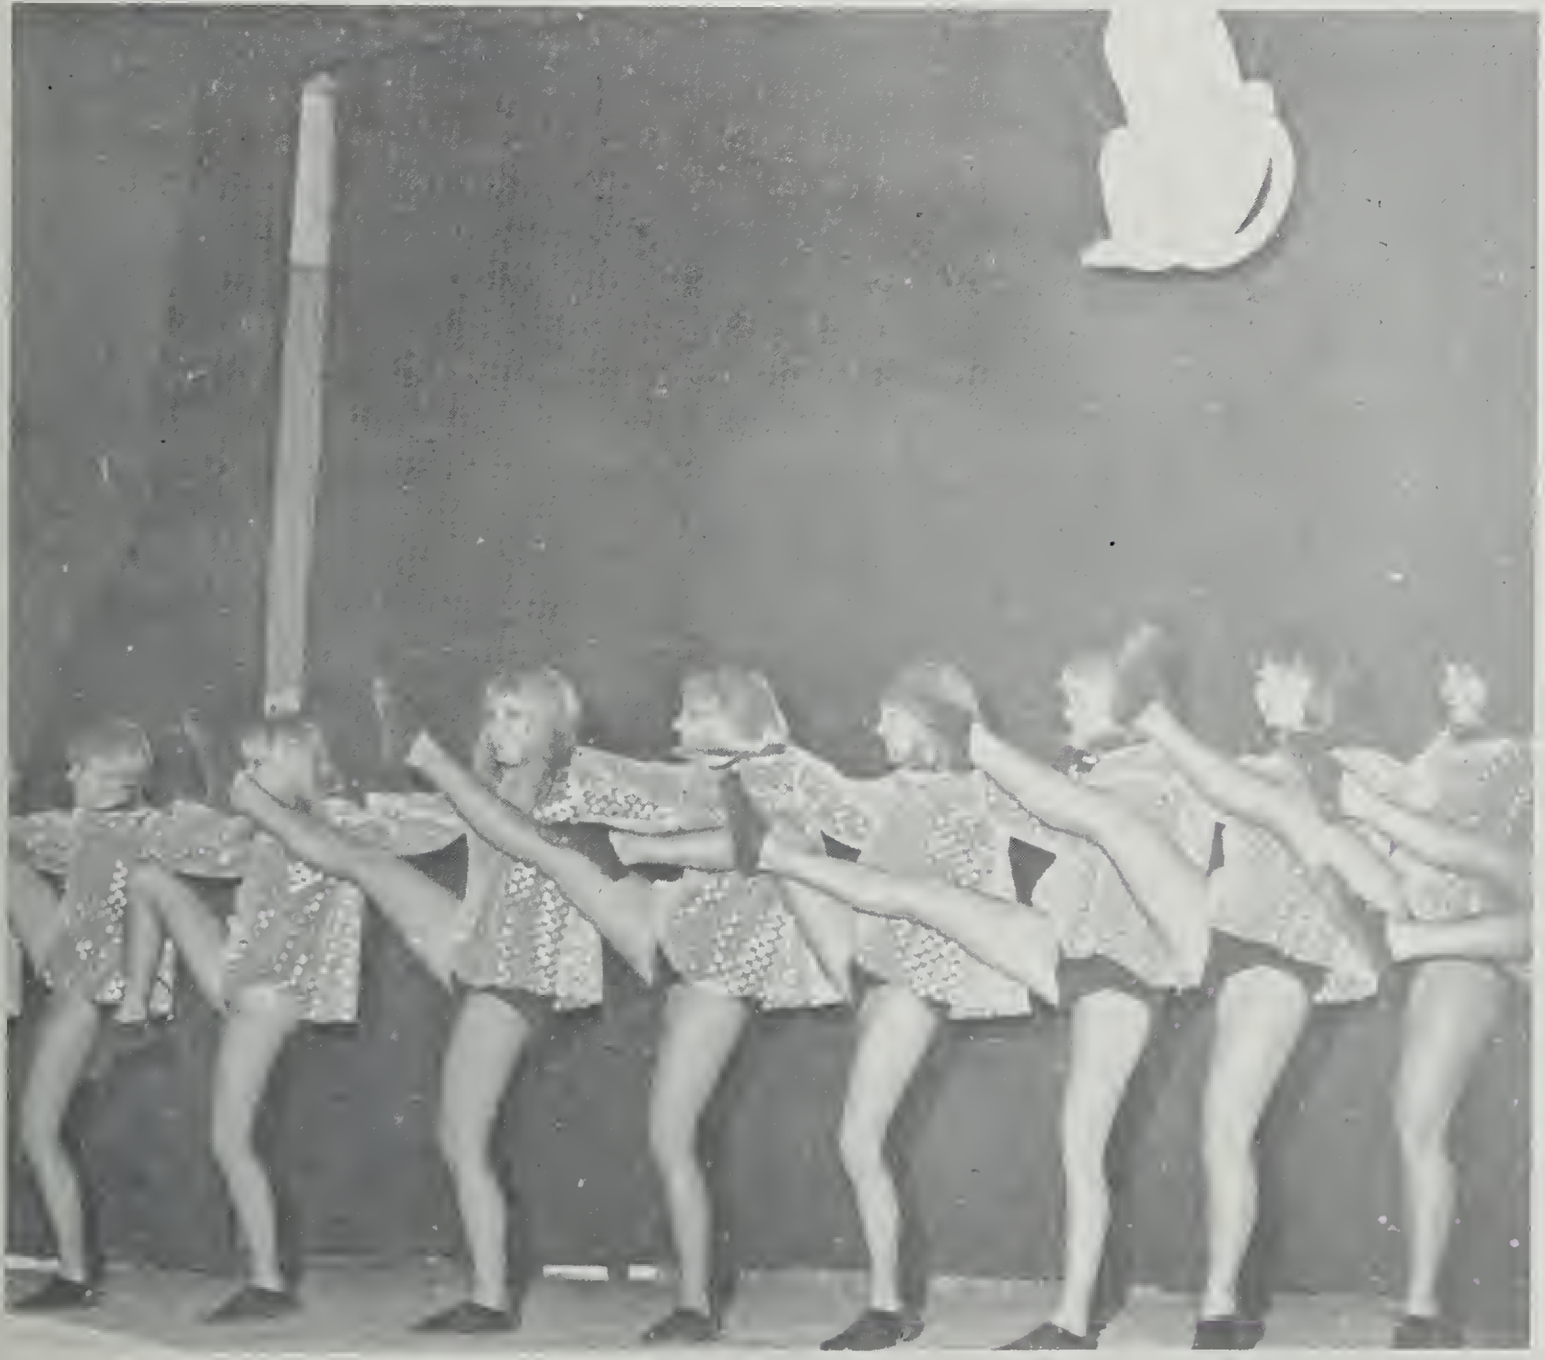
single performance in song and dance of the entire school year

Months of midnight rehearsals and hard work finally culminated in the music department's gala presentation of the year ... EXTRAVAGANZA '67—"Moments to Remember". In accordance with Woodson tradition, the band, baton corps, and choral departments once again joined forces in a totally "FUN" production. While accomplishing their goal, however, students also gained a knowledge of show business as they developed self-confidence, a sense of responsibility, and a learning of how to work cooperatively with each other.

The theme of the evening was featured by the choral settings which varied from "Flicker Flashbacks" to "Tales of Toughmen" and "Voodoo Magic". Dressed in ridiculously uninhibited disguise, the band added a generous note of festivity to the performance.

But, as everyone knows, each "Moment to Remember" has its "Moment to Forget". And so it was, with the dynamic "Winchester Cathedral" trio as Miss Greer shimmied to the rhythmic beat of Mr. Lawrence on the coronet and drums and Mr. Grant on the vocal chords.



Forever smiling the baton corps coordinates another routine. The quick eye of the camera catches what appears to the audience as perfect precision. The baton corps entertained the audience between acts in a friendly fashion.

Juniors' ingenuity paid off in compliments on Sweetheart Dance

Mirrored walls, gigantic playing cards, and highly pruned rose trees transformed Cafeteria A into a "Through the Looking Glass" panorama. Amidst tea cups and pansies, the Alice in Wonderland caricature of Cafeteria B lent an atmosphere of storybook splendor to a season of sweethearts and valentines. As "The Fables" beat out a rollicking rhythm, Cavaliers reverted to their long-forgotten Childhoods, capturing once more the childish pleasures of the past. Then, the members of the Court ascended the throne of brilliant red and Mr. Buskirk crowned Judy Hart to reign as the Sweetheart Queen of 1967. At the conclusion of the coronation, the Court descended to meet their escorts and dance to the Senior Class song, "You'll Never Walk Alone."

As dancers shifted from cafeteria to cafeteria, enjoying the dancing in Cafeteria A and punch and cookies in Cafeteria B, the evening passed quickly. The Fables concluded their performance with "Don't Let the Sun Catch You Crying" while Cavaliers departed with an air of reminiscence and satisfaction.

TOP: Freshman, Glenn Pedonsky, attempts, with an unsteady hand, to pin a corsage on his date Jill Roulstone.

Enjoying each other's company and the refreshments in Wonderland, Nutley (Jane) Harding and George McCarthy laugh over small jokes. The tea party furnished bubbling red punch and unusual cookies.

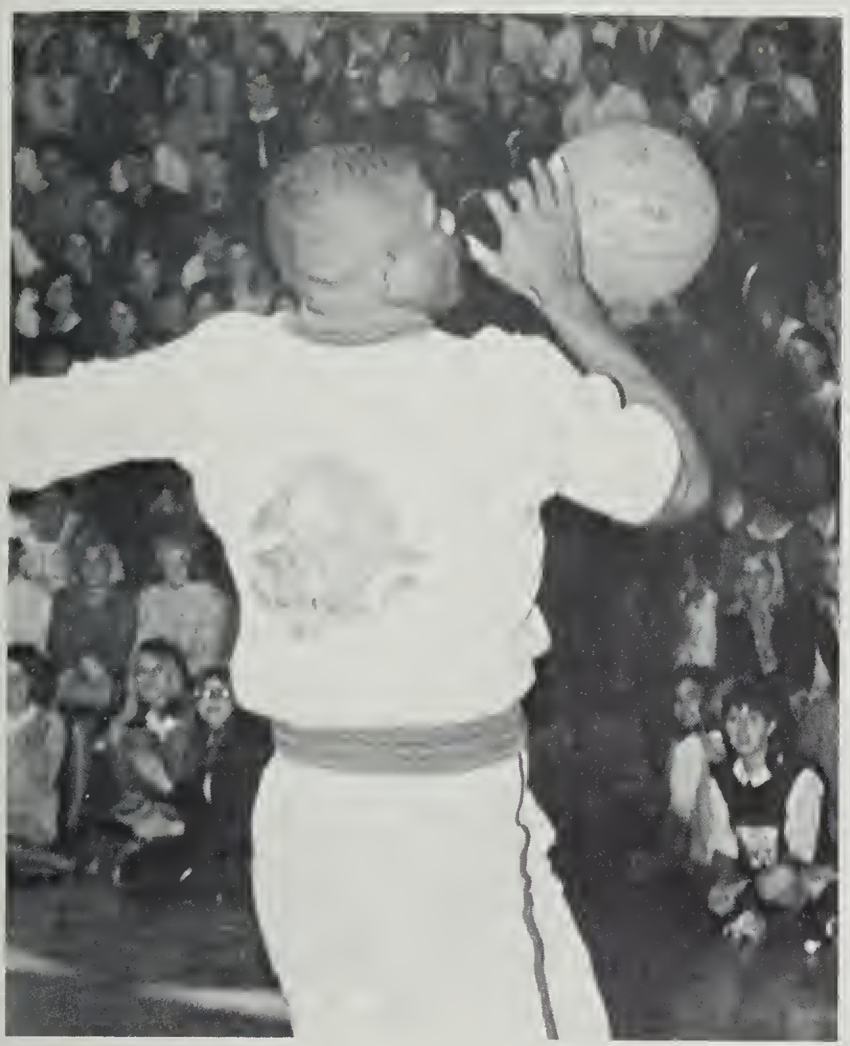
A bouquet of roses becomes Judy Hart as she sits in a stately fashion upon the Queen's throne. Judy was honored in an elaborately decorated seat as Queen of the 1967 Sweetheart Court.

Spirit runs high and strong in a tough but profitable season

When the football season terminated, the crowd that had snuggled under flannel blankets and screamed themselves to death (despite cases of laryngitis) in the cold of autumn moved into the main gym. "But what was wrong with the stadium outdoors?" was the reply. The basketball season started on December 9 at 8:00 with a home game against Fort Hunt. From then until the last game on home courts on February 24, the haunting echo of bouncing balls and anxious spectators filled the gymnasium. Like a contagious disease, the noisy enthusiasm and hoarse yells spread from WTW to the District Tournament. Games became battles—not only between teams but between opposing spectators. Who could scream the loudest? Which side would give its team the most support? It all stopped when the deciding points were scored just as the buzzer rang.

TOP: Cavalier Charley rides again. Chad Kelso has the honor of representing WTW in the attire of a cavalier. SIDE: Janet Thorton and Gloria La Garde surround their fearless leader. Mr. Eakin holds a bouquet of corsages for his fifteen member harem. As sponsor of the baton corps, he is constantly circled by some of the prettiest smiles in the school.



Jimmy Jukes has supernatural powers to control the ball as he warms up for a winning night.

Here sits the W.T.W. basketball team. These boys brought Woodson to number two in the district.

Steve Diantonio relaxes at Cleve's pizza shop after a basketball game. For a large number of Woodson students this is the hangout where laughter and discussion of games, lost and won, take place. Cleve's gave many a place for good socializing when there seemed nothing to do.

Warm summer days make school a universal impossibility

Now is the time for all good seniors to come to the aid of their court. Loyally these three girls beautify the senior court.

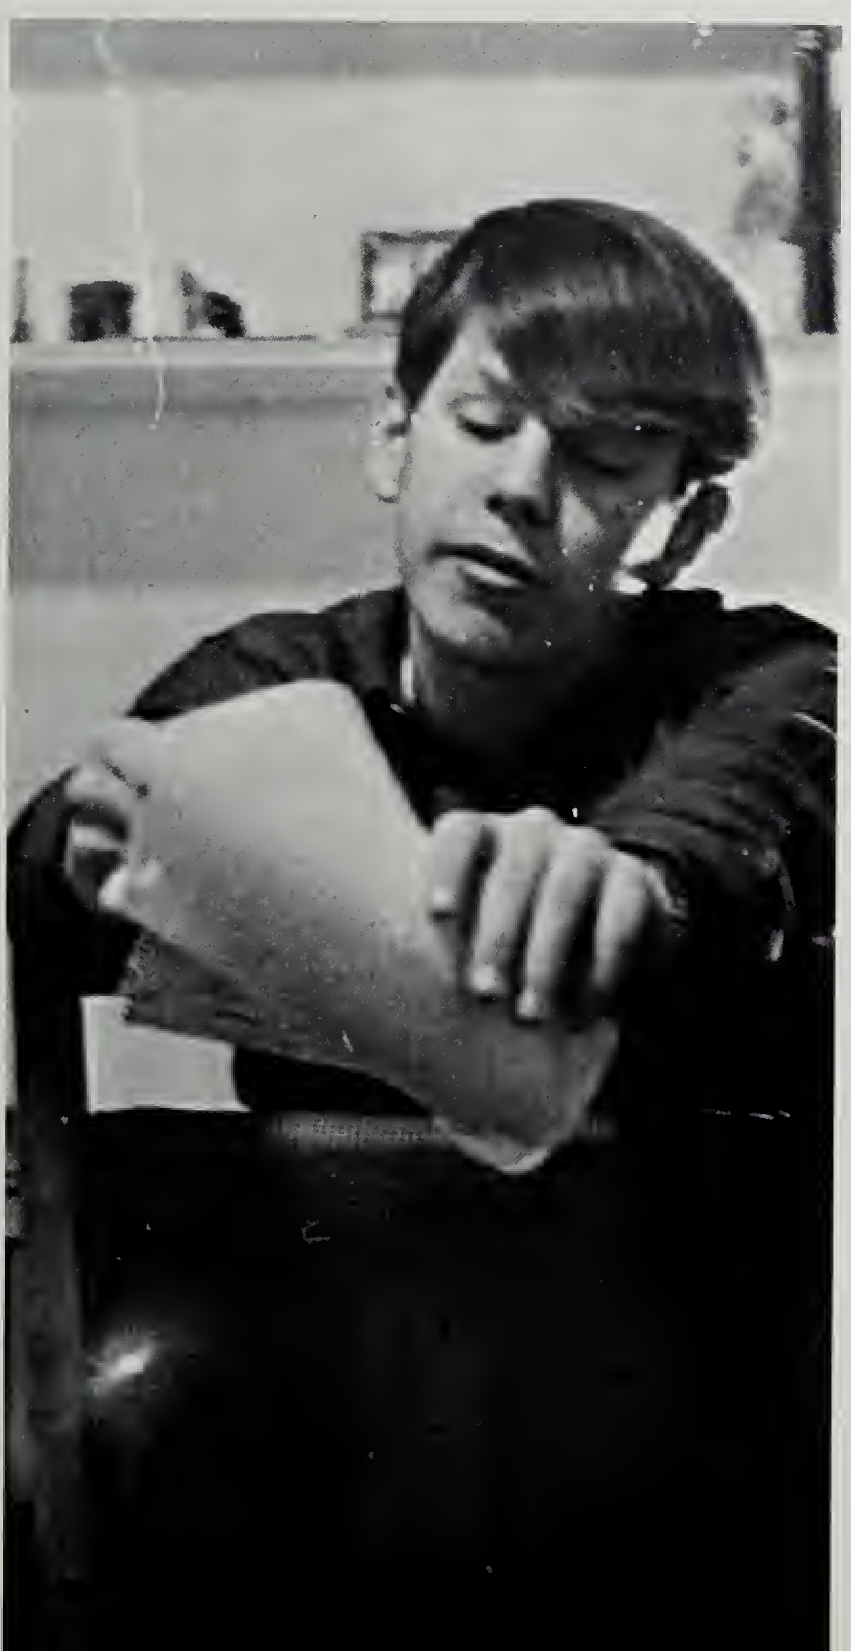
That first whiff of potent spring air can transform serious scholars into a herd of Ferdinand the bulls, lethargically day-dreaming away the time in a typical Spring stupor. Senior slump doesn't discriminate. Freshmen, sophomores, and juniors alike are caught in the "slagging spirit" of the season. That hint that summer vacation is just six exams away can be too much for a struggling, winter-weary student.

But just when the last lap seems farthest away and one has "plenty of time" to prepare for term papers and exams, the final week is just around the corner. Alas, notes haven't begun to take order and term papers are still stuck on the first paragraph. Spring has sprung and the students are about to be. Anticipation turns into nostalgia that last day, when we slam our empty lockers for the last time and say goodbye to those endless halls, admitting sheepishly to ourselves that it hasn't been such a bad year after all.

As connoisseurs struck with a severe case of spring fever, Mike Jones and Mike Johnson toast to the completion of the school year. Spring does funny things to some people and for these two it meant utter insanity. They have gone to the extreme with silver platters and imported wine. Also these juniors have thievingly used the senior court as a proper setting.

Grabbing a few bites before the rush Linda Ruef, Marium Carlson, and Jane Udy await the mad race popsicles.

Doug Holmes fights off drowsiness while cramming for his final exam. Like many he is trying to comprehend nine months of learning in one night.



A warm breeze and a bit of sunshine bring gym classes outside. Many use this period to begin their tans for the beach. These four boys, however, are encompassed in a fast game of basketball.

Mr. Buskirk appointed A.P.I. for ADMINISTRATION;

Contrary to popular belief, the main office was not Stalagg 13. Our administration would never dream of lynching Mickey Mouse or outlawing pogo sticks. But they had more important things to do than quarantining restrooms, cropping hair, and raiding parking lots.

Far from the days of knuckle-rapping and dunce caps, our "jet-age" administration kept a friendly, fair, but firm atmosphere. (Have you ever noticed the absence of smiles on students' faces leaving that "friendly" atmosphere?)

But our administration was unique. Where else could you find students first in the eyes of the principals, with teachers and themselves running second? In great consideration of the overwhelming size and equanimity of WTW, there were still 3274 first placers. Wasn't that an awful lot of individual attention? As the year drew to a close, the bonds between students and our administration grew closer—a relationship essential to the expanding Woodson Way.

"Should I apply to Kalamazoo or Tyler U.?, joked a distraught senior frantically tearing through college catalogs.

"But I don't like my history teacher," pleads a small voice from a counselor's office.

"What do you mean college board applications had to be mailed in yesterday!!!", moans another.

These remarks were all familiar sounds heard each day in our Guidance Department.

Throughout the year, WTW counselors patiently prepared schedules and college transcripts, completed grade averages and class rank, administered standardized tests, and provided career information for those interested. Busy as they were, they were always willing to lend a sympathetic ear to those students who desired to just talk.

From registration to graduation, (through encouragement, information and advice), Woodson's guidance counselors played an important part in our students' vocational future.

Mrs. Horner smiles sadly as she hands another senior a college acceptance. The thought of losing so many personal friends is dismal, but the students' smiles of joy brighten her mood. A student has almost completed another phase of his life.

Drafting

Students have always complained of not having enough practical job training during their high school years. Woodson's Vocational Department has solved that problem. Contained in its own, separate fully-equipped series of "think-and-do" class rooms, this department has provided the past several years a real opportunity for students to gain experience in any one of ten fields, from auto mechanics and drafting to data processing and practical nursing. Mr. Robert Simms was the assistant principal responsible for these courses and Mr. Oscar Baughan Jr. was department chairman.

TOP: "They did it again! I asked for an extra sandwich, and they gave it to Mr. Wells!" thinks Mr. Simms disgustedly.
BOTTOM: Brace Kennedy listens as his teacher lectures in Cosmetology. The only male in the class, Brace has found many advantages.

Vocational Education students experienced on-the-job training

The classes were held in two parts: one hour of lecture and two hours of practical experience. Students were trained in their area of interest and were observed by community contacts as prospective employees. The department sponsored three training programs: Distributive Education, Vocational Office Training, and Industrial Cooperative Training. Students attended school during the mornings and still had opportunity to work part-time.

The Vocational Department at Woodson is one of the most complete in the state, and an impressive attraction for any school. After graduation, too, the worth of a project like ours is proven when an ex-student can boast of job training or on-the-job experience, which, after all, is still the most valuable recommendation.

Richard Watkins seems to be holding up a Mack truck; actually, he's "operating" on a car in the Auto-Mechanics Division as part of the two hours practical experience allotted every day.

Miss Stanley waits for a student to sign for a book as she surveys the library area for any violators of the "silence rule." Punishment for such negligence could be suspension from the library, which certainly doesn't help a week before term papers are due!

LIBRARY expanded its facilities to accommodate new books

Accompanying the onset of another year was the traditional, seemingly boundless stream of term papers, research projects, and supplementary reading. It was nothing unusual to discover the library bubbling with activity generated by hundreds of students from 8:00 until 4:15 p.m. every day. With an excess of 16,000 books, and 5,000 fresh volumes of knowledge at their disposal, pupils and teachers alike procured information vital to extensive assignments and course plans.

Behind the scenes, people thought there must have been someone keeping this large scale operation working smoothly. If, by chance, one happened into the small office sometime, he would be greeted by either Mrs. Fyfe, Mrs. Powers, Miss Stanley, or Miss Sudduth. After all, screens and projectors just did not sign themselves out, nor did books arrange themselves in order on shelves.

"But who's that industrious student?" One of the forty assistants, of course.

The library seemed almost deserted sometimes during the day, but before school, during fourth period, and after school, its facilities were used to the fullest under crowded conditions.

Public Speaking, Reading, Journalism and Creative Writing

"What's the earth—without the knowledge of language—found, gained, and kept?" (Robert Browning).

Woodson students discovered that English was a necessary element in their education. Keeping this in mind, fellow Cavaliers decided whether they wanted to place emphasis on diverse aspects of literature, fundamentals of composition, or mechanics and grammar. No matter what their final choice was, it broadened their outlook.

"History of American Ideas", a two hour English-History course, was given to a select group of juniors. The objective was to parallel American Literature with American History.

"Hmm, I wonder what that nut thinks he's doing with the camera," contemplates Diane Price in her English class.

"And that's how you make a jack-o-lantern out of a pumpkin."—Barbara Breedlove has just finished her speech using a pumpkin for a visual aid in public speaking class.

Intensive English, another advanced course, was offered only to seniors who had a special interest in a complete study of literature. The reading of Pilgrim's Progress, Le Morte d' Arthur, Gulliver's Travels—were a few of the selections required as summer preparatory reading.

Studies in "World Civilizations" were exclusively for seniors who had taken English Literature in their junior year. In these classes, informative comparisons were made between ancient history and Medieval English.

Also to be found in the English Department were more explicit forms of English—journalism, public speaking, drama, and creative writing. Intensification and development of special writing and dramatic talents personified this field.

The FOREIGN LANGUAGE Department introduced Chinese

"Gutentagen!" "Je ne comprends pas. Je ne parle pas Allemand." "Habla ud Espanol?" "Si!" "Buenot". A scene from a famine research reception at the U.N.? Possibly—more likely two erudite Woodson students showing off the fruits of their ALM labor. While infinitely long tapes were repeating, students may not have fully appreciated the value of a second language. But, when a semi-fluency had been achieved, les élèves were pleasantly surprised at what could be done with drumming drills into reluctant heads. Besides its mental and academic stimulation, a foreign language became handy for filling in key words in secret notes that were in danger of being intercepted.

"I think it's fine that our students have an opportunity to become bi-lingual—now if they would only learn English!" lamented an English teacher.

Chris Bald seems to be the only person in his class who is actually enjoying the language lab session. Even Mr. Woodrum looks as if he might be a bit bored listening to his Spanish students slurring through the language.

During the Latin holiday, Saturnalia, the Latin Club put on a take-off of "The Frogs" by Aristophanes. Here, Ron Beuch, Peter Carlson, and Pat Sandrock find themselves in quite a predicament—they forgot their lines.

Foreign language classes find that the easiest way to cover bulletin boards is by using posters. Here, "The Valley of the Loire" and "Paris, the city of lights" stimulate beautiful daydreams.

Preparing today for tomorrow,

Geography presented an opportunty to study a non-western civilization and generate more attention to an expanding world. U. S. and World History sought to invoke pride in the past and interest in the future. "American Ideas" combined two hours of History and English, enabling individuals to acquire a detailed knowledge of American culture. Finally, U. S. Government gave students a better appreciation and understanding of the various functions of our nation's governmental system.

Through analysis and comprehension of U. S. and world culture, this department served in preparing today's students for their roles as tomorrow's citizens.

Miss Story contemplates society—or is she looking for some sneaky Cavalier who thought he could go out to McDonald's for lunch?

Margie Fish seems to find something terribly amusing during her math class. Maybe she'd let some in on the joke who don't find working with numbers so easy.

"Well, see, it happened like this: I broke my leg during lunch and so I had to ride the elevator between classes. But all of a sudden, it just healed on my way down and I ... guess I'll take the stairs next time." The appearance of Mr. George brings to Randy Smith's mind in a flash the restrictions on riding the elevator imposed on students.

MATHEMATICS classes ranged from algebra to calculus

"If a/b = c/d, then ad = bc. I wonder why . . . ?" As an algebra student pondered such questions, schoolmates pursued studies in various fields of math.

This year, the Math Department found new, effective ways to define important concepts.

Basic arithmetic principles were introduced in Algebra I and Geometry. For those who considered college, courses ranging from Algebra II-Trig to Calculus were offered.

Many reasons existed for students to choose mathematics besides fulfillment of graduation requirements. Some Cavaliers reflected the prospects of teaching or a career as a company mathematician. Future scientists and statisticians knew that a working knowledge of numbers would be an essential part of their jobs.

TOP: "Well it says right here that X + X = 2X, and even though your argument is pretty convincing, I still can't accept an answer of 3X!" Mr. Bell tells an algebra student.

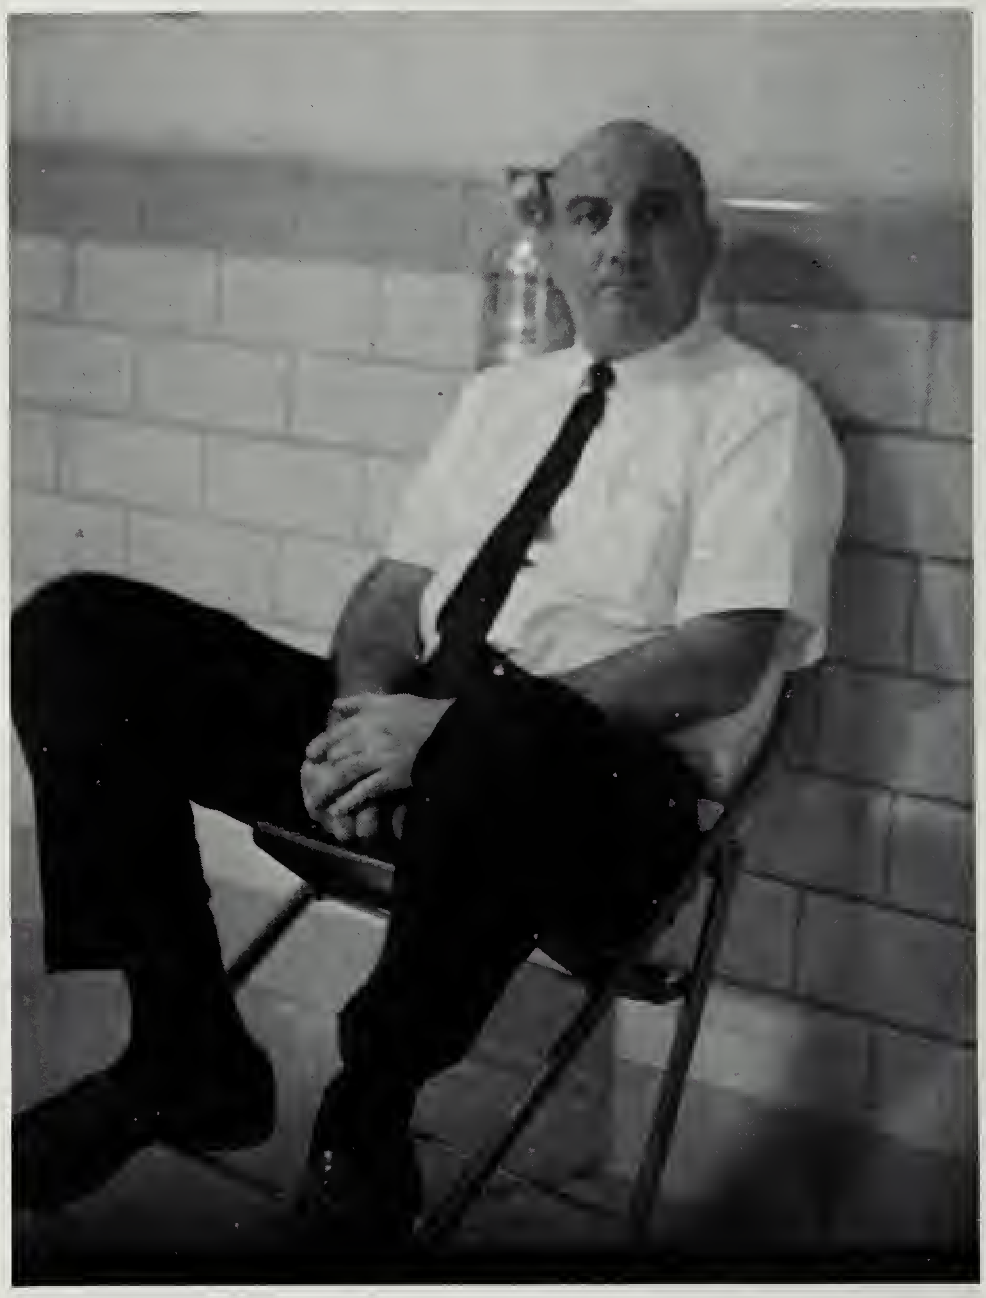
Mrs. Hill gets ready to use the opaque projector during a Geometry class. New equipment in the Math Department also included desks with graphs that could actually be written on. It seemed odd to be told to write on a desk for a change!

Physicists, Biologists and Chemists concocted witches' brews

Mutation, extrapolation, tensile strength, and solstice became familiar to the vocabulary of prospective scientists as they endeavored to succeed despite broken test tubes, run-away frogs, an unbalanced balance, and twisted slinkeys. While frustrated "biologists" carefully counted minute yeast populations, across the hall would-be chemists observed the complex behavior of a flickering candle, and physics students manipulated variegated pulleys.

Striving to keep pace with progress, and discharge obsolete theories, Woodson utilized modern educational techniques. Woodson teachers instilled a curiosity of the unknown, a perpetual quest for knowledge, and a sound understanding of scientific method in these future scientists. The fluctuating concepts learned provided an opportunity to be creative and to apply known scientific theories to fields of individual interest.



Behind that cherubic face is the suspicious mind of Mr. Humphrey sitting out hall duty during lunch period. Have you ever felt his penetrating stare as you went past on some spontaneous emergency?

Helen Roberts uses all her brute strength to pull a 200 pound slinkey from its roots . . . for a Physics experiment involving the observation of wave motion.

Exultant cries echoing down the halls, rhythmical bouncing of basketballs ushering in another goal, groans of cold showers, accompanied with "Okay, outside!", succored the P.E. students to keep physically fit.

Starting in the Freshman year, learning to become safe drivers, with Man and the Motor Car, a visit from Officer Cox, and hoping to earn one of those "Safe Driving" stickers when they became bonafide drivers, helped the freshmen through the cold fall months. Modern Dance and many happy hours spent in health drew the sophomores in from the foreboding weather outside to the safe "comforts" of WTW. Upperclassmen experienced the excitation of hitting a "bulls eye", while game, set, and match points were determined at the tennis courts.

BUSINESS students discovered the challenge of office world

Is this the way to run a business education class? You bet it is! If classes could include this ... Mrs. Martin doesn't usually conduct courses in this manner, but a few bars of "Louie, Louie" would be interesting once in a while.

"Sex. Sex? I could have sworn I hit the "i" key!" "Hey, slow it down! Even Superman couldn't write 90 words a minute with only 5% errors!" Woodson's Business Education courses offered a real challenge to aspiring young secretaries and stenographers who must learn that perfection is the difference between sinking and swimming in the business world. The most important aspect of these courses, as important as learning the skill itself, is coordinating speed and accuracy, both absolute necessities in modern business.

One third of the student body was enrolled in business courses, from typing to shorthand, from bookkeeping to accounting. Students who were not planning a future in business found typing and shorthand could be a handy assistance in schoolwork, and opportunity for a summer job, and a foot-in-the-door to almost any vocation. Many qualified for the Civil Service Exam required for Federal job placement.

Most students who couldn't believe that they would ever be able to type 60 words a minute or take a 90 for 5 in shorthand were astounded by their success at the end of the year (of course there were those who were not). The hardest burden was on the girls who either had to part with their ultranails or risk them on the treacherous typing keys.

Mrs. Edmundson shows her first year students the fundamentals of typing. Even though the drills seem tedious then, the end of the year brings a slew of experts in the art.

Debbie Granger sits "relaxed," waiting for a speed test to begin. Listening for a starting signal does tense you up and she would jam the keys at the word "go!"

2+2=4, and that's simple enough, but it's still easier to take an adding machine to do your math. Diana Green uses one during class, taking her time so the answer won't come out wrong.

Mech. Drawing

Steve Dabney uses a metal lathe as part of the course in Industrial Arts. He is working with the latest in mechanical apparatus housed in two immense shops near the cafeteria.

Mr. Lina closely examines some material for one of his Industrial Art classes, keeping his safety glasses on as part of the mandatory protection precaution. His General Shop course includes handling of tools and machinery, using metals, and printing.

during the Christmas Drive

Among the coeducational courses at WTW, a male refuge was established in the Industrial Arts wing. Instruction in woodworking, electronics, metal working, mechanics, and mechanical drawing made a foreboding atmosphere where girls never dared to venture, lest they be swept up in the confusing world of sparks, hammers, mathematical computations, and buzz saws.

Future architects visualizing themselves at their chosen vocation toiled many hours over a drafting board, obtaining that "perfect angle", to complete his project. Students decided on the project, designed it, engineered the construction, worked the problems, and developed the plan of procedure to the finish. This prepared them to encounter similar problems in industry with a stout mind, which would lead on to a lasting knowledge in tools and materials.

For a special project, they fashioned wooden toys to donate to the Student Government Christmas Drive.

"Hey! What smells so good? I'm hungry!" Suddenly, the halls were blocked and traffic was almost at a standstill. A small cluster of students cautiously approached a door, then peered inside. Their gaze fell on a bevy of girls working frantically in a world of stoves, frying pans, and cookbooks, while they produced such worthy foodstuffs as pastries, pancakes, and delightful luncheons.

During sewing sessions, students were made cognizant of the importance of using the right stitch and tension, how to attach collars to an arabesquely-shaped neckline, and the gravity of an even hemline. For projects, some of the advanced classes turned their favorite patterns into eye-catching fashions.

When the activities were more subdued, future dieticians, interior decorators, nurses, designers, and homemakers flocked into the rooms for career instruction. Home Economics courses on levels I-IV and Senior Homemaking provided training for anyone interested. In Home Economics, the girls were taught how to manage a household with "Tender Loving Care."

As Home Ec students Carol Rudzinski and Sandra Kerby check to see if their lunch is ready, they will have to prepare themselves for the onset of starving students storming the kitchens when the aroma of cooking food reaches the hallway.

RIGHT: Sylvia McBride learns how to sift flour in case there comes a time she can't get the pre-sifted kind.
FAR RIGHT: Mrs. Barber, the Home Economics department chairman, looks over Phyllis Diller's Housekeeping Hints.

Myra Thorne subtly sews her finger to the table as she learns in first year Home Ec that it is absolutely necessary to keep your hand out of the way. Sandy Jones, a veteran of four years smiles patiently in the background.

Betsy Ross maybe ... No it's just Kitty West carefully adding the finishing touches to her sewing project. Students made everything from stuffed animals to school dresses.

The ART department placed new emphasis on senior classes

So what if Bob Dylan was playing in the background? It's all part of the creative process! And what comes out of it? Bikinied girls running across canvases of daisies, all of a city dump on a cardboard box, macaroni folksingers, and Viet Nam War collages . . . There's not much left after that!

There was a more serious side to the Art Department's program, though. With three new instructors, including chairman, Mrs. Mary Keever, there emerged an abundance of fresh ideas (accounting for the macaroni portraits). The students contributed to the continuous displays in the art wing hall; a new room—fully equipped—was supplied for an increasing number of enrollees in all five courses; additional senior art classes attracted those who wanted to experiment in different medias without having to go through years of preliminary training.

Sounds of music . . . Debbie Hill, Terri Thomas, and Donna Lalor listen to Mr. Grant lecture on the techniques of good playing to his second period concert band.

MUSIC Department welcomed Mr. Lawrence as new band director.

Miss Greer smiles in disbelief as one of her choirs sings "Mary Had a Little Lamb" off key. Perhaps making them sing "Baloo Lammy" ten times in a row yesterday wasn't such a good idea after all.

OUR MUSIC DIRECTORS . . . "Two redheads and an American!" Could Mr. Grant be slightly prejudiced?

This year, Woodson's Music Department was comprised of over 600 students. In addition to Christmas and Spring concerts, the various choirs and bands performed throughout Fairfax County. Our Symphonic Band played for all our home games as well as for the dedication of Northern Virginia Community College and the Virginia Sailors Championship Football Game, on December 15, the Symphonic Choir sang at the Christmas Tree Ceremonies in Washington, D.C.

Although our music department remained basically the same, several changes were accomplished. Mr. Lawrence succeeded Mr. Buskirk as band director when the latter became an assistant principal. A training choir, the Choralettes, and the Choraliers were added while the Select Girl's Choir was deleted to enable the best girls' voices to sing both with or without male accompaniment.

In Woodson tradition, the band and choir members again joined forces for the presentation of the Extravaganza, when imagination and creativity lent a hand to a "fun" production.

The training of a music student, however, was merely the beginning of years of study ahead as Woodson Musicians strove for perfection.

TOP: Mr. Turner takes a few minutes off from his duties as head custodian to read the paper and have a cup of coffee . . . and waits for that inevitable P.A. announcement: "Mr. Turner, please come to the main office."

BOTTOM: The delight of every student! Report cards! Miss Carson of I.B.M. regards the preparation of those little heartbreakers as merely one phase of her job. WTW literally depends on the I.B.M. computers to keep the school operating, eliminating hours of tedious clerical work otherwise necessary in a place so immense.

an efficient, competent school

Thanks to I.B.M., teachers (now) have what old school marms would term a "soft life". The I.B.M. workers punched thousands of quarterly and mid-term marks on report cards and records, turned out roll sheets, schedules, and even insurance, publications, and text book records. These people were a vital part of the Woodson Special Services staff that kept the school running smoothly and efficiently.

Office secretaries, another valuable group, were bombarded daily with administrative papers and phone calls, along with tardy passes that raised more than one understanding eyebrow (everything from dental appointments to "I slipped in the creek").

Our clinic may not have the "Ben Casey" bedside manner, but that didn't reduce the flow of "sick" students, which was particularly noticeable on test days. The clinic was an arsenal of bandages, mercurochrome, and almost any other medicinal need for treating ingrown toenails to rope burns—except aspirin.

WTW cafeteria workers exercised "white thumbs" in the kitchens by producing over 2000 nutritional lunches per day. Amidst this mass production, the holidays were remembered. There were Thanksgiving turkey, red and green "jello" at Christmas, and even a brown-and-orange color scheme at Halloween!

"Isn't this the fourth unexcused tardy you've had today?" Mrs. Hippler says in frustration to one of the multitude of students whom she greets with a welcome smile every day in the main office. For anyone to have such stamina . . .

Trying to act inconspicuous with hundreds of greedy eyes staring at that rationed ice tea . . . Mr. Jenkins, Mrs. Bowers, Mr. Toompas, and Mr. Chandler eat four of the two thousand lunches Mrs. Spalding and her staff fix for four shifts of ravenous students every day.

The Freshman . . .
An eager immigrant ready to invade the hectic world of S.C.A. and I.B.M.
A separate, special society within society,
A testing ground on which to prove himself, to exhibit his ability, to make his mark,
Where the past rates nothing is a bygone
And the newcomer may neither ride in on the Coattails of previous glories nor be deterred by prior mistakes.
The Freshman . . .
A wary immigrant misled by myths of a perpetual paradise of pep-rallies and football games
Overwhelmed by endless halls leading nowhere
Baffled by six elusive classrooms
Anticipating a four year eternity of close Relationship with an I.B.M. card and of peaceful coexistence with the natives.
The first test grade reducing hopes of graduating with an "A" average to hopes of graduating—period.
Anticipating successes—experiencing failures.
The Freshman . . .
An unpolished immigrant
Raw material anxious to shape this world and yet in turn being molded by it
Not yet poised while racing the bell or dashing to lunch
Not quite adept at freeing jammed lockers
Used and abused by the natives
But able to take consolation in the knowledge that his turn will come as people learn through people.

FAR LEFT: This is Egberta, she flunked science. This is the warning that usually hangs on this young lady's head. It is just Mr. Humphrey's subtle way of showing his classes the results if they don't study.

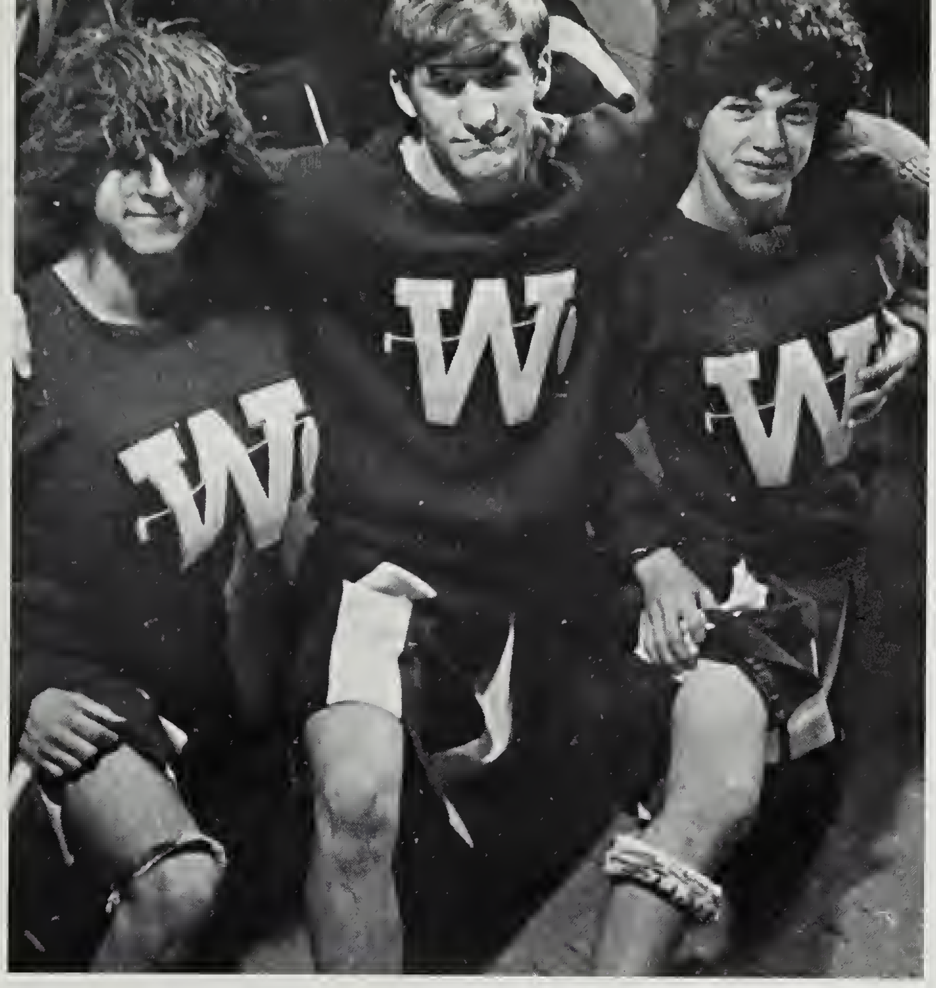
Larry Powers seems to have something bigger and better in his hands than a football. Her name is Debbie Petsko—and she isn't a football player—she's a J.V. cheerleader.



LEFT: "Here's the whole mixed-up bunch of us: ready, willing, and able to do whatever you require. I'm not real sure that it'll get done, but we can give it that good ole high school try!" exclaims Sharon Pfleger. "At least you'll get a few laughs."

RIGHT: "See! Us boys have good lookin' legs, too. But nobody ever gives us a chance to prove it," say Bruce Petrovic, Rick Sprague and Jim Pickeral. "We've thought about entering a Miss World Contest. How do you think we'll do? Awful? Just wait 'til you see us in bathing suits!"

LEFT: "Well, here we go again!" sighs Kirk Arant as he trudges up the stairs to his next class. "Every day seems to be the same. First up the stairs, then down the stairs. Will it ever end?"
RIGHT: It's the daily line-up for lunch. Every day approximately 2,000 students go through four different lines, in two separate cafeterias, during four lunch shifts, and all in one class period.

The cafeteria has always been the place to go in the morning, either just to work, or sit and talk which is much more fun. Tom Bates, Carol Ansheles, and Chip Cloney seem to be involved in a friendly conspiracy over next weekend's dates.

Looks like we caught both Pattys—Orme and Farmer—in the act, but what act is the question. Maybe they're going to try to change the school's color scheme, but that'd take longer than late bus time. So it must be a smaller project, like decorating a Christmas door.

"Taking shop is very educational. You'd be surprised at the things we learn. But no matter how much we learn, we still have to be neat, which involves taking the trash out," says Steve Christ. "And it's easier and more fun if you can get Lee Blumenthal to help."

JUNIORS

The Junior . . .
An old pro at the exasperating game of playing "what's my number?" by I.B.M.
Now a well-stratified and much solidified member of organized society
Enthusiastic but weary component of established cliques
With one year left to prove himself in a rushed overcrowded world.

The Junior . . .
A knowing, understanding pro when some flustered freshman charges around a crowded corner
After three years, he knows the pathways, the mountains, and the short-cuts to classes
He is well-acquainted with the activities that spark his individual interests
But there's a lot more ahead.

The Junior . . .
Older than most of his schoolmates but still younger than others
He finds a world of new challenges ready to confront him every year
The time for big decisions is drawing nearer everyday
Looking everywhere for what is rightfully his and who he is.

Mr. Douglas Divers Jr. from L. G. Balfour Co. measures fingers and takes orders for rings. He also assists in helping students choose the color, size, and the finish they want.

Juniors made their first step toward Seniority by selecting rings

Bonnie Allen eyes the rings presented by the L. G. Balfour Co. and wonders "which stone is the prettiest?" The price range varied from $17.00 to $22.00 with choices of stone, finish, closed or open back, and size left to personal preference. This display was placed in the showcase in the main lobby and an additional display was brought to each room for an aid to those still undecided.

SENIORS

Class Vice-President Kurt Jacobsen

Senior . . .
Zenith, the sovereign of the high school years,
Floating in an aura of rings and proms and mortar boards, symbols of reaching the pinnacle Squeezing term papers from overwhelming volumes, late hours and mental sweat
Deciphering applications, completing forms, forms, forms
Whirling in a kaleidoscope of activity.
Senior . . .
Straddling the sheltering wall between
"life" and Life
Tottering on the brink of reality, struggling to sustain balance against the impact of the world
Poised to plunge from the "impossible problems" of school into the insoluble dilemmas of the universe Skeptical, wary of being tossed and torn by those who came before Excited by the future, reluctant to let go of the past.
Senior . . .
Where did the time go?
Suddenly tomorrow is today and today is yesterday . . .
But is it the end? It is only the beginning, an initiation into Life.
Senior . . .
Is not a person, not a title
But the magical word signifying fulfillment, future, fun, and freedom . . .
Ask any freshman.

"When you walk through a storm,
Hold your head up high
And don't be afraid of the dark
At the end of the storm is a golden sky
And the sweet silver song of a lark.
Walk on through the wind,
Walk on through the rain
Though your dreams be tossed and blown
Walk on, walk on with hope in your heart
And you'll never walk alone,
You'll never walk alone."

Woodson people everywhere
Their spirit unsurpassed
Their roar is heard above the crowd
As victory is their cry!

Woodson athletes play the game
While Woodson fans cheer on
They know it's not the score that counts
But "how one play's the game!"

People watch with spirits high
The many games of sports
A goal is scored, a mile is run
Another basket made . . .

People learn through people
They learn as they compete.

Coach Chuck Billak ponders in his mind many of the problems that a head coach of a Varsity Football team faces. The coach was proud of the team's record this year. It was the best in Woodson's five year history.

On the night of September 9, the Cavalier Varsity defeated the Jefferson Colonials in the first game of the 1966 season. After that, the Cavaliers were defeated only twice as they sailed through an 8-2 season.

Woodson's first defeat came in the jam-packed Annandale High School Stadium where the WTW Varsity clashed with the Atoms. Players, coaches, and spectators sensed an upset that did not occur. In the last few seconds, the Atoms scored from the one yard line, making the final tally: Annandale, 19; Woodson, 14.

Woodson bounced back by defeating Marshall, Fort Hunt, and Lee with scores of 20-13, 13-6, and 20-0 respectively. The Marshall game was climaxed by Chuck Hoffman's run for a 65-yard touchdown, forty seconds into the second half.

Only losses were to Atoms and Rebels who had undefeated

Below are two of the scenes in which the Cavalier offensive lines tore holes in the Atom's defense. On the left, fullback Vic Allen (30) took a hand-off from Don Stoops before going through the middle of the line. On the right Chuck Hoffman (27) gained 5 yards before being brought down by an Annandale tackle.

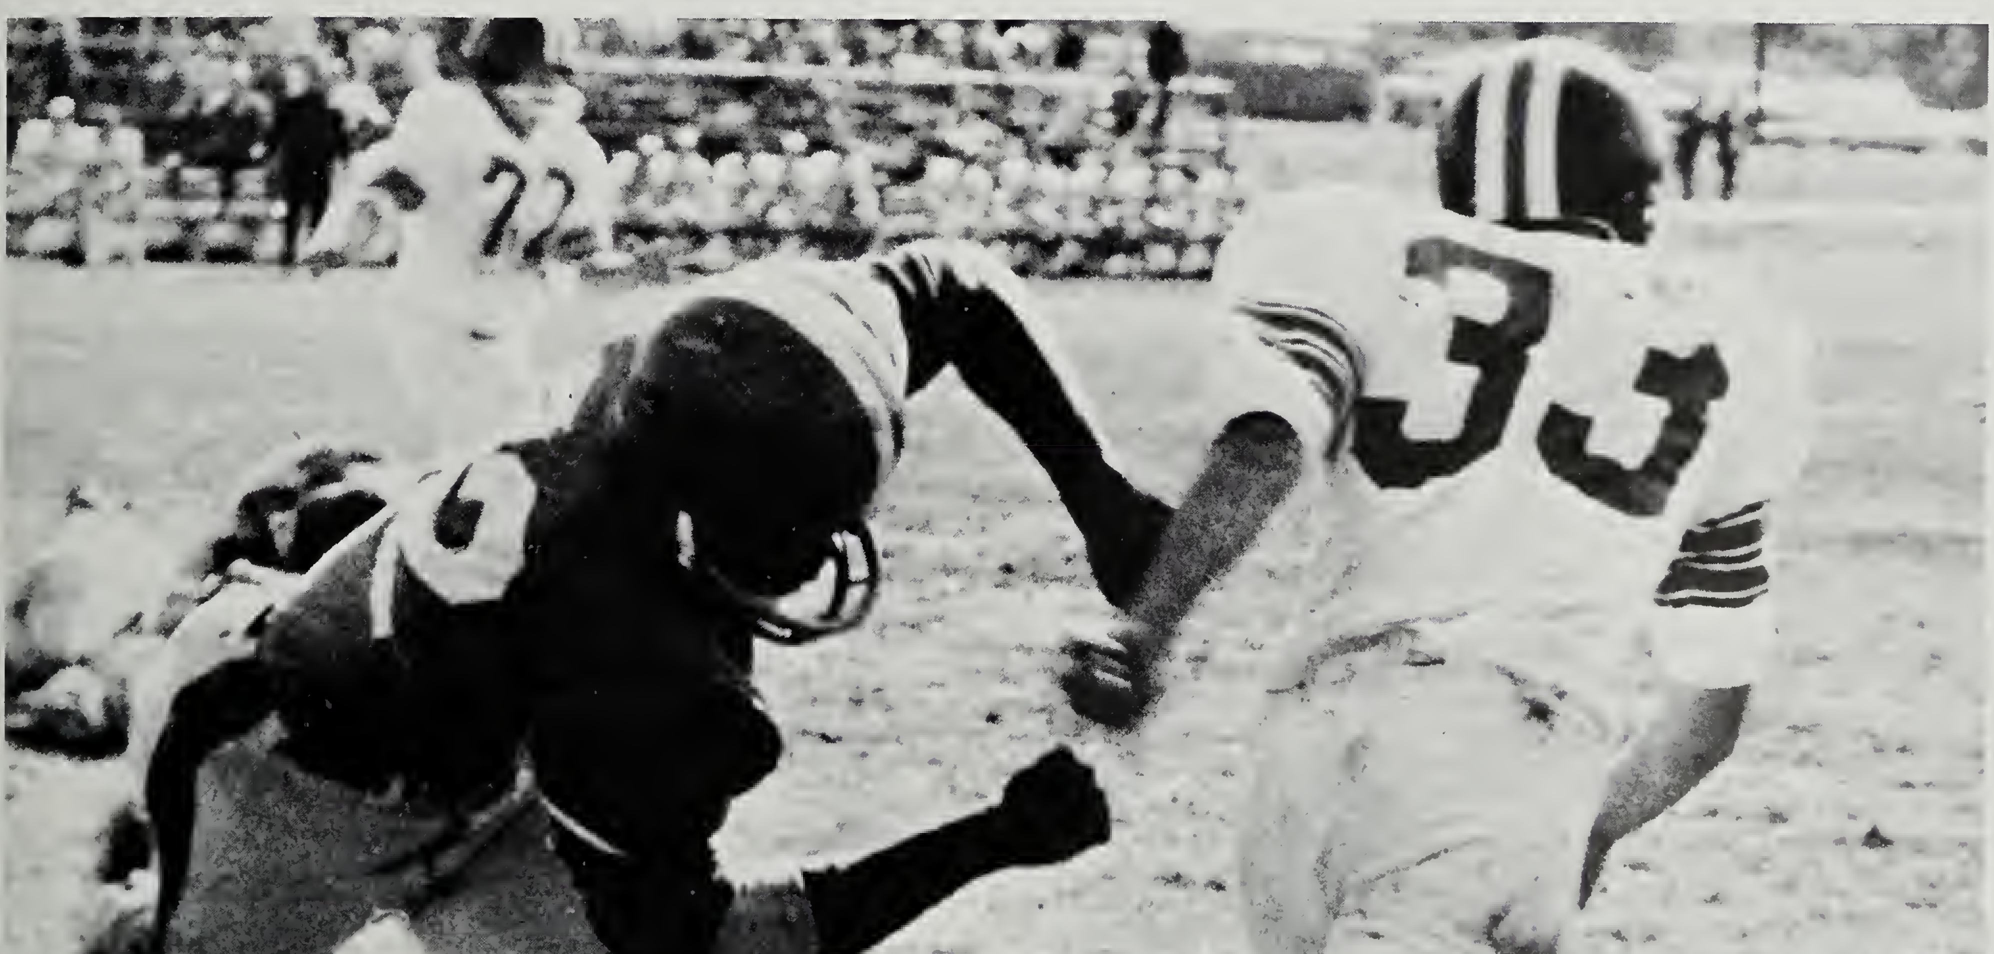
seasons and were contending for Virginia State Championship



Jimmy Jukes attempts to bring down a Madison fullback before he can pick up enough yardage for a first down. This among other fine defensive plays limited the Warhawks to 6 points while Woodson's offense made 28.

Henderson, Jacobs, Shelton received honors of "All Suburban"

Tom Jones (41) stops a would-be touchdown against Madison late in the third quarter. The Warhawks pounded on the door many times, but with the agility of the defensive team, Madison's offense was able to score only 6 points.

Woodson's only other loss came when Fairfax overcame the Cavaliers by a score of 19-7. The highlight of the game arrived when Herb Forsburg grabbed a loose ball and sprinted 26 yards for a touchdown.

Woodson then won their last four games with tallies of 28-6, 35-18, and 33-13 against Madison, Falls Church, and George Washington. Woodson's final game was led by halfback Tony Barile, who contributed four of the eight touchdowns scored by Cavaliers. Five of these scores were made in the third quarter to defeat Edison 56-20. When the last gun sounded at the end of 48 minutes of action packed football, one member of the Freshman team of '64 proudly said, "I played on the greatest team of Woodson's five year history!"

Timing is perfect as Tony Barile awaits the touchdown pass from Don Stoops early in the first quarter. The offensive line gave Stoops excellent protection throughout the evening as the Cavaliers led the Atoms until the final 30 seconds of the game.

Despite the rush of the defense, Don "Gogalak" Stoops with his miracle toe, splits the uprights as Tom Jones (21) steadies the ball. This soon became a familiar scene, for in the last game against Edison, Stoops made 8 consecutive extra points to set a new school record.

As he makes his way to pay dirt during the George Washington game, galloping Tony Barile uses some fancy footwork to outrun the last eligible tackler.

Two defeats stopped Junior Varsity's bid for an 8-0 season

The J. V. team attained an outstanding record of 6-2 during the 1966 season despite an opening loss to Annandale and a closing one to West Springfield. After their loss to the Atoms, the Cavaliers swung forward by defeating Jefferson, Marshall, and Lee. With the Fairfax game coming, tenseness was in the air, for the Rebels had beaten highly-rated Annandale. Star halfback Pete Hansen was hurt late in the week and coach Lee Knupp relied on Terry Jukes. Terry delighted the coach, making two touchdowns, one of which came late in the third quarter with a seventy yard run. The defense led by David Burke and Drew Conaway held the hard hitting Rebel offense to 6 points while the Cavaliers brought about an upset of 13-6. The following week against Madison, the offense exploded with 20 points while the defense limited the Warhawks to 6. The offense was led by Charles Zigler who made a seventy yard touchdown run while the defense was led by interceptions from Mike Lee and John Pickeral. With another victory the following week against Falls Church, the boys' spirit was up for the West Springfield game. Even though the Woodson team was defeated, Mr. Knupp credited them with the best game they played all season.

After receiving the ball from Bill Nesley (12), Terry Jukes (30) tries to find daylight in the Falls Church defense. When Woodson scored the only touchdown of the game, Jukes was called on to make the extra point and succeeded.

Terry Jukes (30) shows the agility and speed which gained for him the "Most Outstanding Player" award on the J.V. team. Terry was the leading scorer for the team with 64 points.

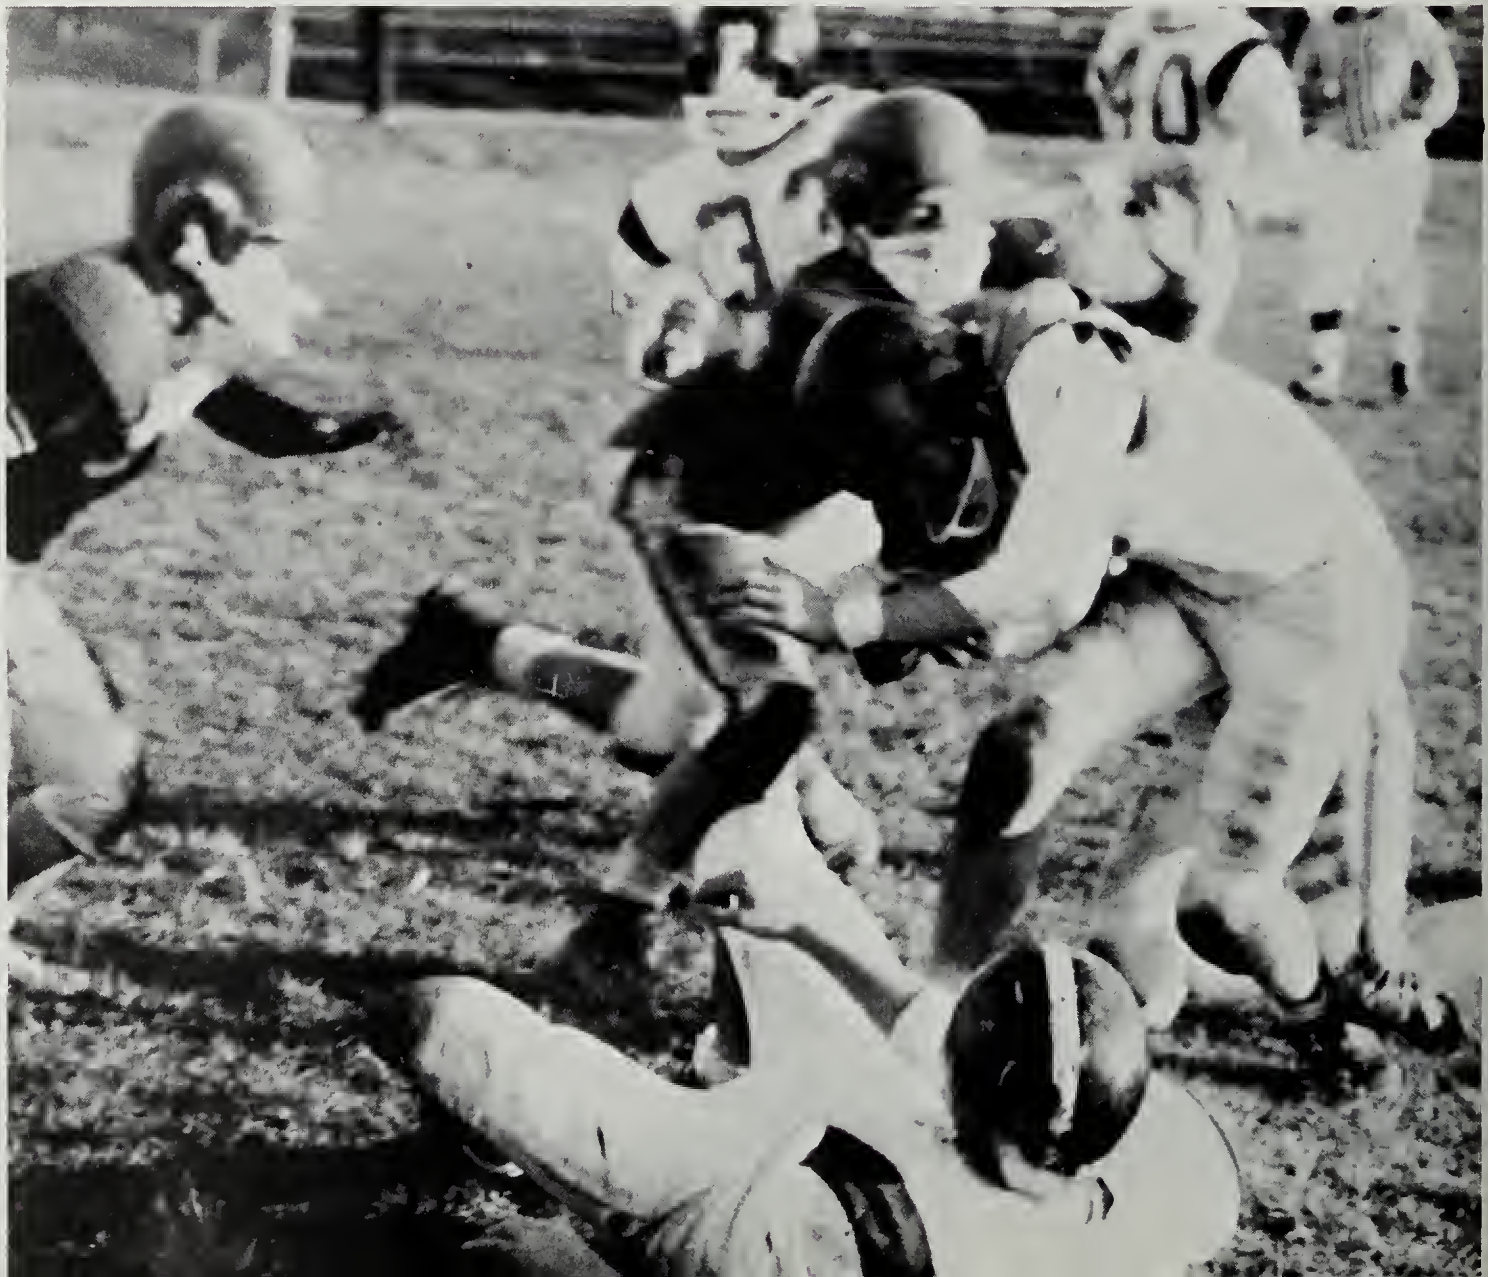
Larry Walsh as well as other members of the defensive team display their ability, as they bring down the Falls Church ball carrier, without letting him pick up the necessary yardage for a first down. The hard hitting defense held the Jaguars scoreless as the Cavaliers went on to defeat Falls Church 7-0.

Frosh profited at end of season: Victory? No! Experience? Yes!

Daylight seems impossible as the rush of Warhawk defenders put pressure on Bruce Greenburg (44). Rippey (33) throws a key block which sets Greenburg loose to pick up the necessary yardage of a first down. The Cavaliers took advantage of this play and went on to score their single touchdown of the game.

Freshman defensive players show how tackling practice pays off as they evade the interference on the ground and bring down the Madison ball carrier.



The Freshman team had a season in which they gained experience for next year's J. V. squad, despite a 0-6 record.

Pass interceptions, fumbles, and need for experience were hardships the team faced. This year was the first time that most of the members played on an organized football squad. Mr. Keever said, "With a little development, the J. V. could have a fine team next year." The coach felt the most effective play the offense had was its double reverse. This play went for long yardage when it was badly needed. During the Fairfax game, defensive lineman Gilbert Ewell intercepted a Rebel pass and sprinted 40 yards for Woodson's only touchdown of the game.

Leading the offense for the frosh team was center Owen Dickens, who won the Outstanding Player award at the Fall Sports Award Banquet.

Barefooted Tom Armstrong runs the last 20 yards for second place as Clayton Hill finishes with a close third against Falls Church. In this meet, five out of the seven Woodson starters finished before even one Jaguar runner.

With the return of only one letterman to the team, R. Eakin, Woodson's cross country coach had a lot of work ahead of him. Coach Eakin felt with a school as large as Woodson, there should be a chance to show their potential. Instead of having only a varsity team, the coach established a junior varsity team and showed Woodson's strong running ability.

The first practice was only eighteen days before the first meet and no one was in shape. The boys drilled and practiced on the 2.3 mile track and despite their first loss to Fairfax, the team showed promise. Woodson lost a dual meet the following week to Annandale-Yorktown, and rebounded to defeat West Springfield and Falls Church. Coach Eakin invited Fairfax and Annandale to a return meet. Only Fairfax accepted and Woodson scored an overwhelming victory against them.

When the season ended, Bill Gerring received the "Most Outstanding Cross Country Runner" award. Seven members were awarded letters, five of whom will be returning next season.

WTW Musket team enriched every varsity home football game

This year started off with a "bang!" for the WTW musket team! Now in their fifth year, Woodson's "Fairfax Rifles" have captured the Northern Virginia Championship and achieved many individual aims.

Being the only official high school musket team in the country, they competed successfully with adult teams all over the eastern half of the United States.

The general objective of the "Fairfax Rifles" was "to participate and promote competition in the firing of military arms of the American Civil War, and to foster public interest in the military history of the United States." Working to achieve their target, Mr. Humphrey remarked that they triggered "the development of self-discipline, team play, and self-reliance, which are the essentials of good sportsmanship and the foundation of true patriotism."

With the camera speed set at 1/250 of a second and the shutter half open, David Hill, the yearbook photographer, photographed the cannon a split second after it was fired. The WTW Musket team put on an exhibition at every home varsity football game.

Hockey teams displayed skill and endurance against their rivals

"Ground—sticks—ground—sticks," resounded the voices of two opponents amidst the grinding turbulence of opposing hockey sticks. After weeks of preparation and practice, our varsity girls hockey team triumphed 2 to 0 against Herndon in their first game. Captains, Raleigh Shreve and Pam Rittman, "old pros" at hockey, aided in organizing and regimenting the team to its maximum capability. The continued and unrelenting effort which the group displayed proved successful throughout the year as they scored a winning record of 3-1-4.

The junior varsity team also persevered to achieve its goal. Steady determination and forbearance were repaid by a disappointing scoreboard—2 wins, 5 losses and 1 tie. JV Coach, Mrs. Harvalik and Miss Poarch, Varsity Coach, were confident that with renewed effort these girls would strengthen the varsity team next year.

"2-4-6-8, who do we appreciate?" was the cry that ended every JV game. As the hockey teams walked off the field, there was the roar of victory or the silence of defeat.

Many teams in the country would have been happy with a record of 16 wins and 4 losses, but not the Woodson Cavaliers. Under the direction of Coach Red Jenkins, the varsity team lost to Fairfax in the I-VA District Tournament by a close score of 55-51, eliminating our chance for a berth at Charlottesville.

Returning members Steve Rust, Hap Hodges, and Dave Oliverio were the outstanding offensive players. Chris Zier, the leading rebounder, was also an offensive star.

Woodson's leading scorer, Dave Oliverio, who averaged 16 points a game, was picked for "All Metropolitan". He and Chris Zier were picked for the "All District" team. Both players have been offered full scholarships to outstanding colleges in the country.

Despite the outstretched arms of two Tiger defenders, Dave Oliverio scores two more in Woodson's victory over Groveton. Dave has come from a talented basketball family and has contributed greatly to Woodson's outstanding season.

Woodson's first string center, Chris Zier, (13), overcomes his opponent as Tony Barile, (5), Dave Olivario, (3) and Hap Hodges, (33) stand by to score the first two points against Groveton. Woodson's starting team are all lettermen returning from last year.

Ron Thorn, (12), finds himself hemmed in by two Fort Hunt opponents as he attempts a shot. Ron came to Woodson from West Virginia and has been a great asset to the Varsity's scoring ability.

Chris Zier, leaping for a better shot, attempts to sink one as Steve Rust waits for a possible tap-in. Being 6-foot-8, Chris has superior height over many opponents which enabled him to become one of Woodson's leading rebounders.

Co-captain Dave Oliverio displays the skills which enabled him to become one of Woodsons top scorers. This is Dave's third year on Varsity basketball, the second of which he is a member of the starting team.

Staying low and moving fast, Senior Tony Barile eludes an opponent in an effort to reach the basket. Tony has had an excellent record in Woodson sports. This is his second year in which he has participated in Varsity Basketball.

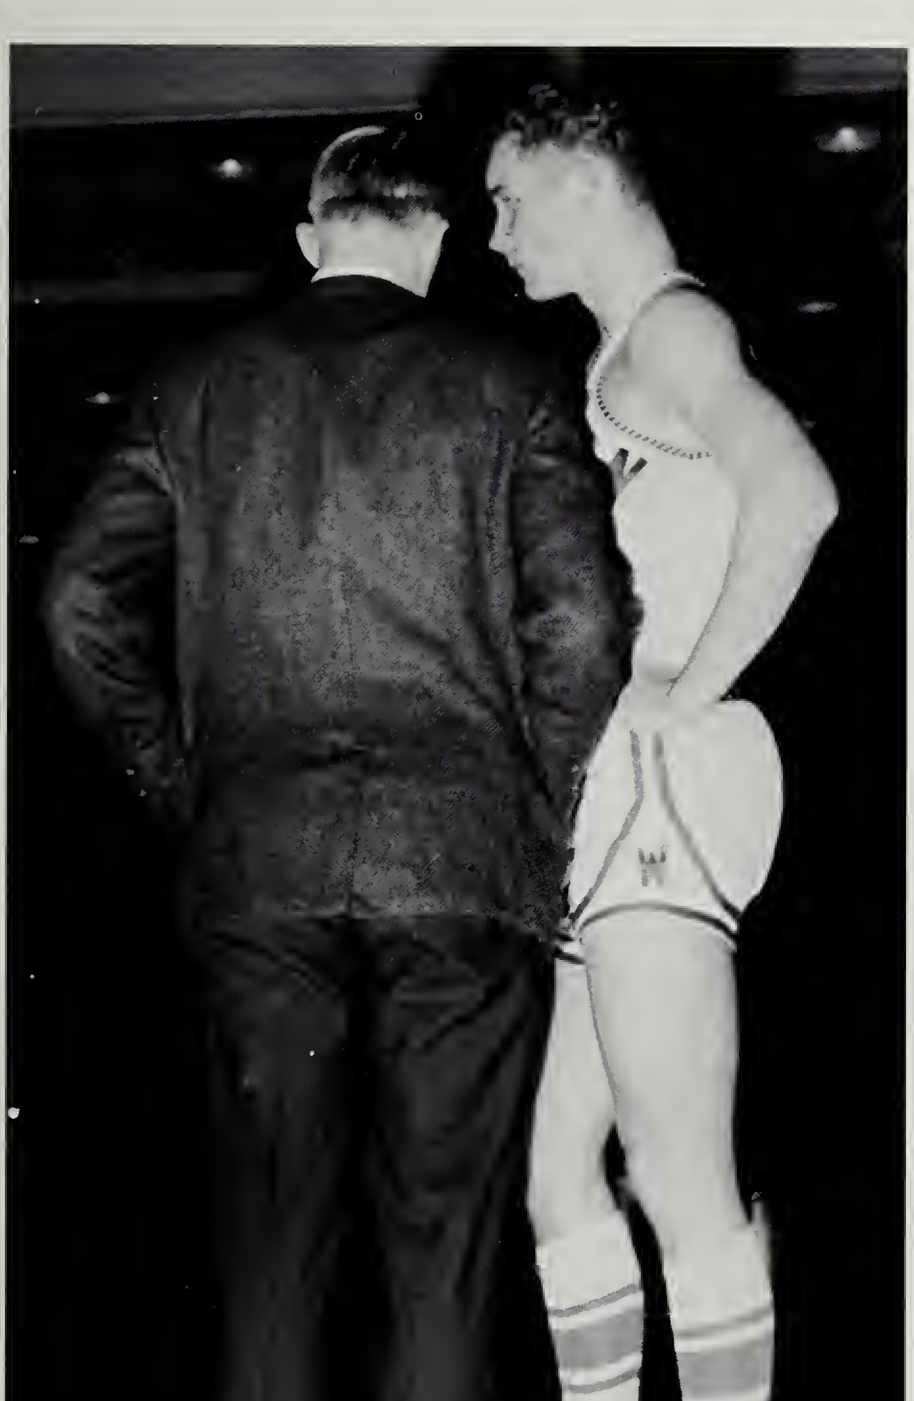
game, were highlights of year

The members of the team and Mr. Jenkins agreed that the greatest highlight of the season was the 66-62 victory over Wakefield. Wakefield had made a great show at State and presented a challenge to the squad.

To quote Coach Jenkins, "Woodson will always have a winning season because of tradition. With as much basketball talent as Woodson has, the team will have a good year only if they want to work." Juniors who showed promise for next year were Jimmy Jukes, Chuck Hoffman, and John Oliverio.

Junior John Oliverio demonstrates some fancy footwork to dribble past the Groveton defender. Because of his experience from Freshman and JV basketball, after only a few games into the season John became one of the five main starters.



Coach Red Jenkins plans some fourth quarter strategy with co-captain Steve Rust. This is the fifth consecutive year Mr. Jenkins has coached the varsity team and has made Woodson a highly ranked basketball school in Virginia.

Pat O'Neal lays one up during an exhibition of Woodson's skill before the starting of the game. Pat made his first appearance on the Varsity squad this season and has gained much experience and knowledge of basketball for next year.

Under the direction of Mr. George Felton, the Junior Varsity team completed their fifth year of competition. Ending the regular season with a record of 13-5, the boys brought the season total to 13-6 when they lost to Fairfax at the tournament game. Despite their losses, this record was the best that any JV Basketball team at Woodson has done.

But John Pecorak, who received the "Most Outstanding JV Basketball Player" award, and Terry Jukes contributed greatly to the offensive lineup that scored an average of 42 points a game. Coach Felton could not stress enough the importance of defense to the boys—and it appeared that they learned well, for the defensive team limited the opposition to an average of 35 points a game.

John Pecorak (43) tries in vain to put the correct body English on his shot as Lee Corder (25) and Annandale opponents look on. Last year John played Freshman football and was voted "Outstanding Player" in Freshman Basketball.

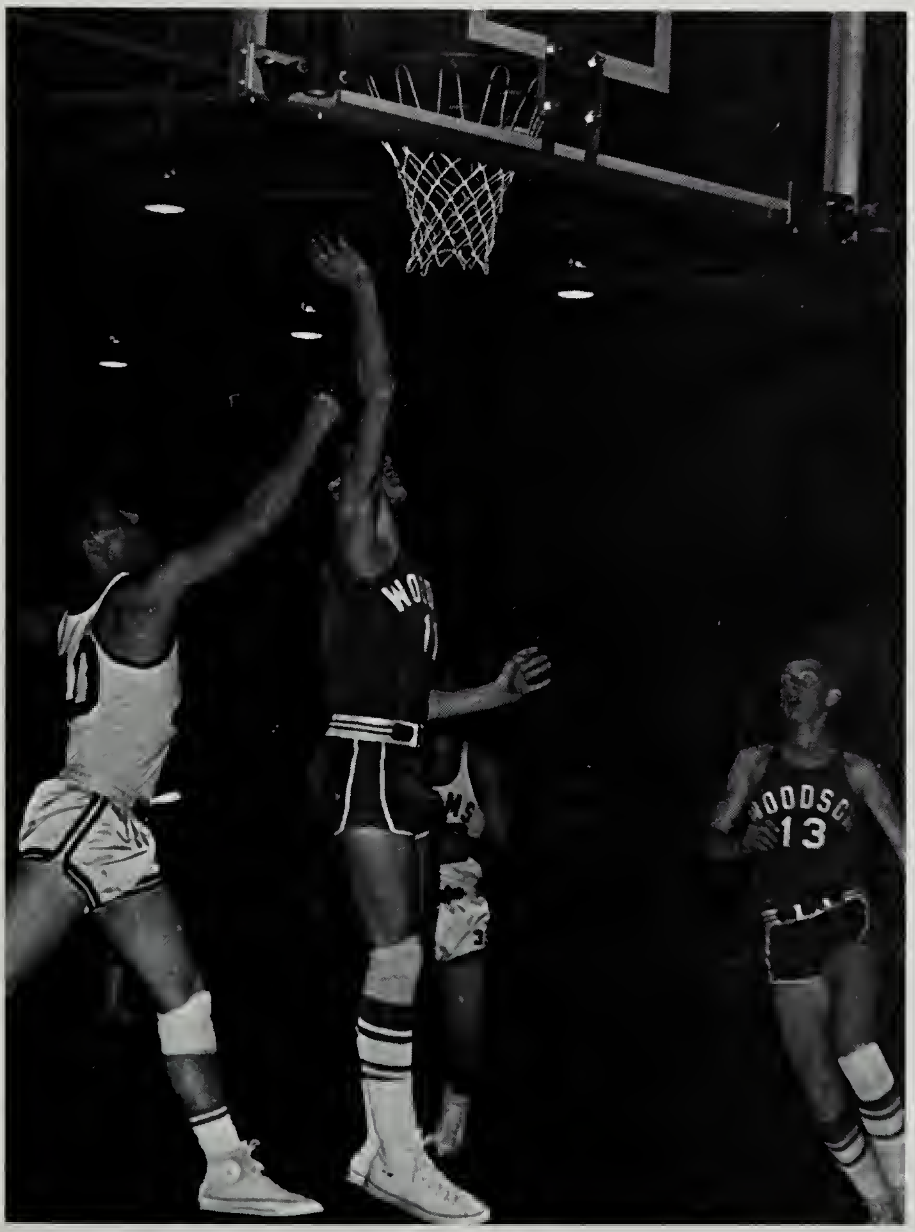
Steve Paris gets past his Annandale adversary as he hits home with a two pointer. Steve played Freshman Basketball last year as well as being president of his class.



Jim Brown is on the groove heading for an attempted lay-up. This year Jim is one of two Juniors playing JV Basketball while last year he was manager.

Basketball was first Freshman sport this year to have victory

Bud Kick, alone under the basket, makes a layup to advance the score. The Freshman team learned the easy fundamentals first and by the end of the season, they mastered the harder ones.

Taking on a personal goal of giving the Freshman class a winning record, the Freshman Basketball team had a victorious season of 10-1.

Leading the team offensively were Bud Kick, T. J. Pecorak and Bruce Greenberg. Defensively, the leader in rebounding was Wayne Dill, who earned the nickname "Mad Dog" from his teammates.

In the game against Fairfax, the team broke the all time Freshman scoring record. The Cavalyearlings mounted 64 points while limiting the Rebels to only 35.

Coach Bernie Thompson is confident that next year's Junior Varsity will credit themselves and their team with a winning record. Out of thirteen boys who played Freshman basketball, Woodson will have only two players transferring to new schools.

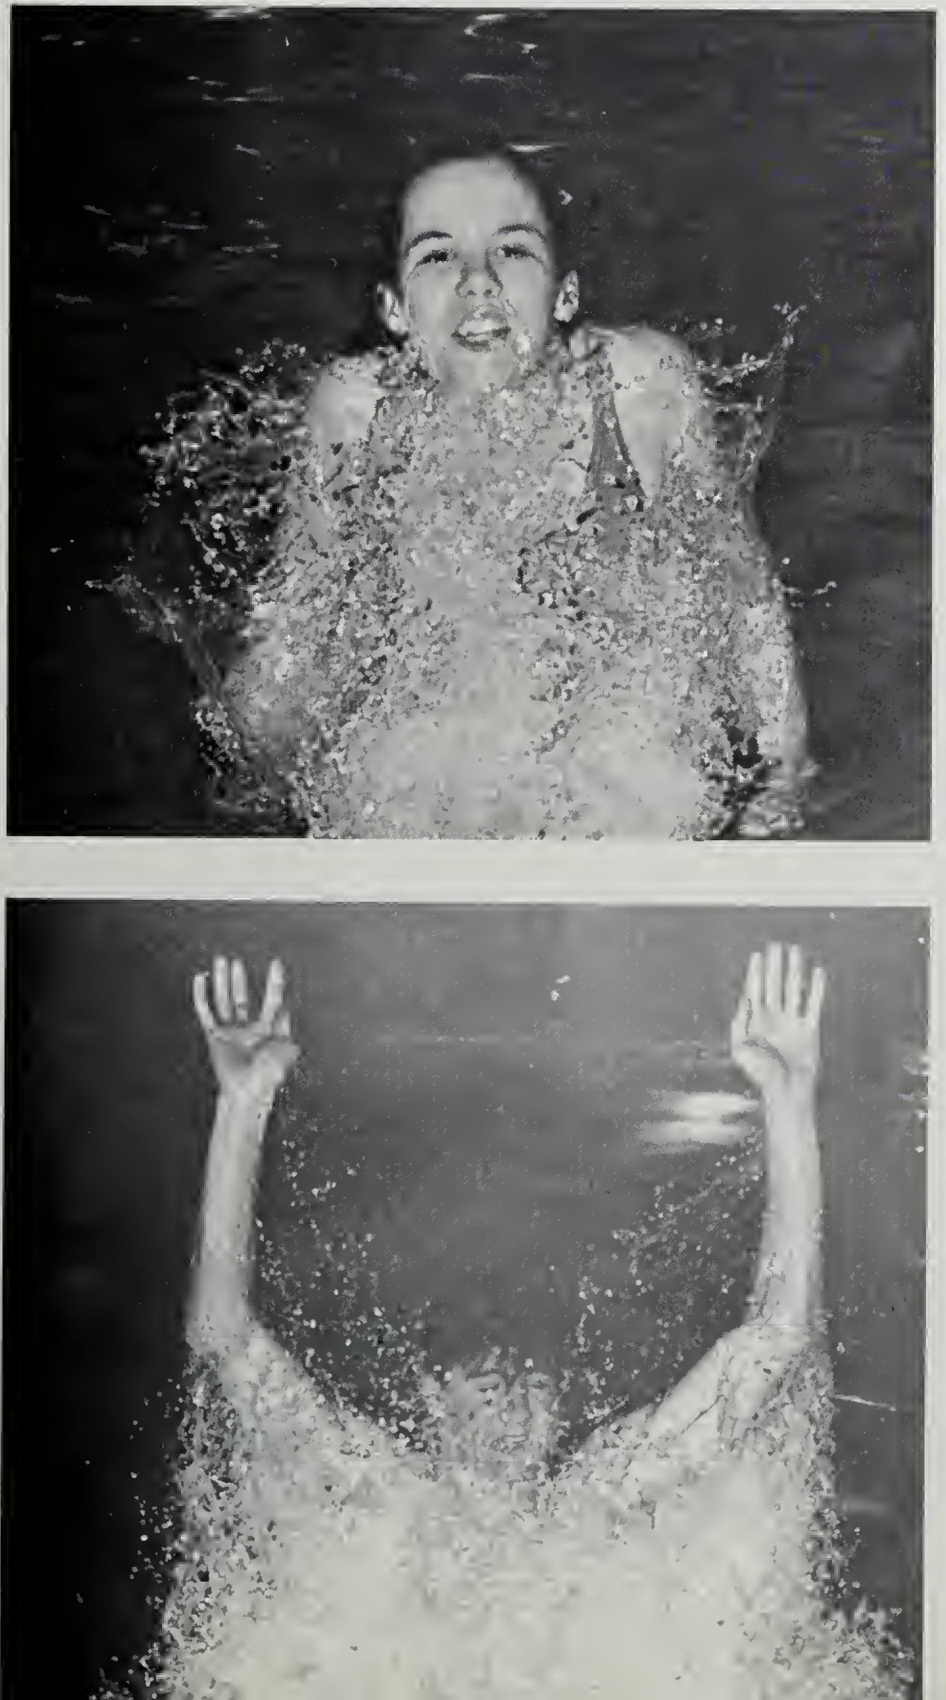
Weekly practice at Starlit was key factor in victorious season

The W. T. Woodson swim team splashed into action this year when they easily defeated T. C. Williams, Annandale, Stuart, Marshall, and Langley.

Woodson swimmers worked hard both in the water and on the ground. Bake sales, car washes, and movies were a few of the activities which the swimmers used to defray the high cost of pool time. (Contrary to popular belief, Woodson has no pool in the basement!)

Outstanding swimmers this year were: Debby Parker, Nan Nencioni, Monte Hatcher, Kendra Vandermeullen, Pete Nickodem, Errol Aboe, Tom Gissendaner, Mike Lee, and Steve Morgan. Steve, the swim team captain, and Tom Gissendaner represented Woodson at the Southeastern Atlantic Interscholastic Swimming Championships at Chapel Hill, North Carolina, and both placed high among the stiff competition.



Training at Starlit Fairways, Marylee Grogan and Steve Morgan take time off to have a little fun. Starlit was the scene of all Woodson's practices and meets this year.

Elmore places in 138 pound weight class at state tournament —

Under the direction of Mr. Houlihan, the varsity wrestling team completed their fifth year of grueling competition. Due to injuries in the upper weight classes, the team's record was not up to par. But many individual wrestlers had outstanding records. The most celebrated team member this year, whom Mr. Houlihan is very proud of, was Bob Elmore. Bob went through the entire regular season, two matches at District, four matches at Regional, and four matches at State with only one loss. His defeat came in the final match at the State Tournament, where he lost to a senior by a close decision of 5-4. Bob's record for this year was 20-1, with an overall tally of 30-4. Next year, when he is a senior, Bob has a great chance to take State.

At the end of the season, underclassmen wrestlers agreed that they had learned many helpful things for next year.

The powerful muscles of Bob Elmore are too much for the Atom opponent to overbear. "Red Baron" Elmore proved to be Mr. Houlihan's highest hope for a state champion to come to Woodson.

Tommy Ford shows his form against Bobby Cummerford of Annandale. Bobby seems to be struggling in vain as Tommy piles up the points in this 112 pound weight class match. The team did not reach early season hopes due to injuries in the upper weight classes.

Waiting for his competitor to make a wrong move, Jeff Young gains riding time in the last few seconds. Riding time proved very valuable throughout the season for it decided many matches in which Woodson participated.

Before the Annandale wrestler is able to reach the edge of the mat, Martin Gastrock hopes to have a take down and receive two points. Because of rough competition in his weight class, Gastrock had to wrestle Junior Varsity but hopes for Varsity next year.

Losing a majority of wrestlers to the Varsity team and to West Springfield High School cramped Woodson's JV style as they finished their season with 5 wins and 4 losses. All concerned felt that Mr. Houlihan's busy schedule with the Varsity team limited his coaching time and that another trainer would have helped considerably. A few outstanding JV wrestlers were Jim Douglas who had a 9-0 record, David Burke whose record was 8-0-1, and Rick Sprague with a 6-1-2 record. Pete Hanson took a step forward and helped the Varsity team by wrestling for them. Mr. Houlihan looks forward to having these and other wrestlers boost the Varsity team's record next year.

McLean thru Fairfax were smashing victories for the Cavalettes

As if to spite all the dismal weather Old Man Winter could dish out and the game postponements that went along with it, the girls' Varsity Basketball Team scored high for an undefeated season (which means a perfect record of 12-0). What made the season a real success, though, was the teamwork exerted on everyone's part. For instance, co-captains Robyn Krug and Chris Clark helped organize and train the squad with Miss Legard's invaluable coaching. Managers Terri Thomas, Carol Sterling, and Dee Boarman kept score and time for the games. Individuals, while adding to team effort, earned special recognition. The "Most Valuable Player", Chris Clark, was high scorer throughout the season; this was obviated by her personal pointage score of 36 at the Madison game. The "Sportsmanship Award" went to Gail Schultz.

The girls' J.V. squad also had a very good season, culminating with a record of 8-4. With the coaching and training of Miss Whitehead, the girls accomplished their goal—sportsmanship, spirit, and high scores. Myra Thorn was the season's high scorer, and Paula Horn was high scorer for individual games. At the Winter Sports Award Banquet, Monte Hatcher was rewarded for her efforts with the J.V. "Sportsmanship Award."

With intense concentration, Sharon White attempts a free-throw shot. Aware that each shot counted, Sharon took advantage of her foul shot and successfully netted the ball.

Rifle team participants advanced only through individual work

With the return of all six lettermen to the squad, Coach Toompas felt that Woodson's team would be high in the competition for the state championship. The coach thought the only school that would give the Cavaliers any trouble would be Falls Church, which was the state champion last year.

Although all six members returned, those who showed exceptional skill were Marty Alford and Emory Peters. Golf is one of the sports which an individual can stand out despite the ability of his fellow teammates..

The Rifle team members constantly put in long hours of practice which proved to be well worth it when the end of the season came.

Team takes great pride in winning as seen last season

"The Tennis team has taken great pride in winning," said Coach Jenkins. This certainly was proven as the squad chalked up a winning season. Coach Jenkins paid particular attention to four players, three of whom are returning lettermen: Jim Strawinski, captain and number one player for the second consecutive year; both Roger Kormendi and Greg Cowart are first string players. The fourth, Ron Thorne, is a transfer student from Pennsylvania who was the Pennsylvania State Junior Doubles Champion.

Day after day, as the Cavalier netmen practiced for their approaching competition, the sounds of self-assured thumps of tennis balls echoed with the nippy March winds. Accurate placing, agile footwork and hours and hours of hard work added up to one of the finest tennis records Woodson has ever had.

New coach stresses hitting and pitching to upcoming players

Last year's J.V. coach, Lee Knupp, now has the Varsity squad. He has many returning lettermen such as his pitcher, Don Stoops, who last year had a record of one win and no losses; Bill Diesselhorst who achieved a record of three wins and one loss; and his relief pitcher, "Corky" Holmes. Also in his bullpen are pitcher Yale Lyman and John Driver, a southpaw.

Although he was quite dependent on his pitchers, Coach Knupp stressed hitting more than anything else. Batting showed a marked improvement over last year. Due to Knupp's many returnees, the defense was a difficult barrier for opposition squads. A solid infield, consistently good hitting, and expert pitching provided a well balanced team that terrorized the Fairfax League.

Don Stoops, one of last year's best pitchers, fires a strike past another batter. Being the first string Varsity QB, Don's arm has proved to be very important to Woodson's athletics.

Coach Gary Kane builds up his infield by hitting the ball to various fielders in a game of long-range "pepper". This was Mr. Kane's first year as Junior Varsity Coach. Mr. Kane told the boys during spring training that he expected a lot of hustle and desire to win.

Coach Thompson is looking forward to a good season and has high hopes for winning three consecutive Fairfax County relays; thus, setting a new high school record.

Mark Mueller starts his wind-up as he prepares to heave the discus. Mark is new to the team this year and he looks like a promising prospect.

Softball rookies gain experience on Junior Varsity team

Girls' sports enthusiasts greeted the fine weather with baseball bats and gloves in hand, prepared to wage a profitable softball season. With a large turnout of over seventy girls, the teams were carefully chosen, resulting in the return of six Varsity players from last year. The girls worked hard to better last year's Varsity record of 6-4 and J.V.'s 8-2. Experience from former years aided the teams, while the eager Freshmen appeared in full force. The season opened April 11th when the teams matched their opponents of Langley, forecasting a promising 1967 season.

Miss Whitehead coached the Varsity girls on to victory while the J.V. played under the direction of Miss Poarch. However, both teams, through determination and long hours of practice, improved skill as well as sportsmanship, adding to this phase of Cavalier life.

Stooping for a grounder, Mary Whitney looks up to find it's too late. This was only one of the practice sessions the J.V. played before the actual season opening.

Presentation of trophies brought about close of the athletic year

At the end of the Sports Award Banquet, Mr. Volrath congratulated Hap Hodges for receiving the Basketball Sportsmanship Award. Hap has had an athletic record at Woodson of which he could be very proud.

The Winter and Fall Sports Award Banquets were the climax for Woodson's athletes. Although all the Cavalier Sportsmen strived for victory and sportsmanship, only a few could be honored with the Outstanding Player and Sportsmanship Awards.

At the banquet's annual festivities, Mr. Phipps congratulated those who, through their outstanding participation in sports, brought a little more honor and respect for Woodson High School. The coaches alternated in presenting awards to their deserving athletes, and true to tradition, the ceremony was followed by a sock-hop for the team members and their dates.

Among those to receive the awards were David Oliverio, Most Outstanding Varsity Basketball Player; Christine Clark, Most Oustanding Girls Varsity Basketball Player; and Bob Elmore, Most Outstanding Varsity Wrestler.

Tony Barile accepts the gleaming trophy from Mr. Shepherd for being the "Most Outstanding Offensive Back." This is the third consecutive year Tony has been honored at the Fall Sports Award Banquet.

As one of the opening speakers, Mr. Bielich addressed athletes and their families at the annual Fall Sports Banquet. The table with cherished trophies symbolized the end of high school athletics for many of the players.

Seven females were the focus of WTW enthusiasm

From the home football field to Annandale to vie for the Northern Virginia District Basketball Title, the Varsity Cheerleaders followed our Varsity teams all over the state. Captains Lauren Riley and Camie Hollowell taught their new squad the words to cheers during summer vacation, then perfected the precision and timing for each individual yell. This group of energetic females also made their presence obvious at Senior Class assemblies where they introduced the class cheers. Their enthusiasm impressed upon each Cavalier the importance of becoming an integral part of their school.

"Whip! Whip! Whip it on 'em!" yells Terri Jones. The Freshman cheerleaders agreed this was their favorite cheer throughout the football and basketball season.

"A girl's work is never done" was quite a popular adage, especially with the J.V. Cheerleaders. Beginning on June 22, seven girls and their squad captain, Christine Riley, met twice a week to refine the timing and precision necessary to lead an effective cheer. During summer vacation, they spent valuable time assembling their uniforms, painting megaphones, and preparing for the first football game on September 15. After seeing the football season through, this squad of energetic cheerleaders compiled a whole new set of yells for the 1966-67 basketball season. From these girls next year's varsity squad will be chosen.

Picked only two weeks before the first game of the season, Freshman Cheerleaders deflated the practice obstacles with ease. Besides advocating the WTW Freshman teams, they sold megaphones and programs at varsity football and basketball games. Through these twelve girls, the Freshman Class developed a sense of responsibility and support of their class activities.

A variety of sports inspired students to compete in intramurals

With the numerous intramurals available to students it's a wonder Woodson doesn't have 3200 athletes. Anything from archery in the fall to tennis in the spring was offered for the students's interest and physical fitness. The most popular game was bowling, one of the only "co-ed" sports. Every Wednesday 4-member teams traveled to Fairfax Bowling Lanes to compete in tournaments. Among the other favorite intramurals were wrestling, basketball, tennis, volleyball, and modern dance.

The main objective for intramurals was to provide an activity for those people not good enough to participate in a varsity sport.

Barbara Harris, well balanced on the bar, concentrates on all the minute details by which she is judged. Among other fields available in gymnastics are tumbling, climbing ropes, and the high bar.

Showing expert form, Cindy Kaufman prepares to go after another spare at Fairfax Bowling Lanes. Cindy had a 125 average, which was one of the highest girl's averages in the league.

S.G. sponsored their annual Magazine and Christmas Drives

Student government is a never-never land where freshmen and seniors actually co-exist and work in peace. The wheels of our first period super-society cliqued into action, drawing drafts for the Blueprint and smoothing out back-to-school lumps even before September closed summer vacation. Setting aside class prejudice, President Bob Douthitt and his crew steered the activities of a united student body and tackled bargaining with the administration for inter-class policies and privileges.

Student Government Chaplain, Greg Cowart, speaks at the Back-to-School assembly, reminding the student body of the significance of the flag and the respect due it.

Annual leadership training conference drew many participants

As a non-profit organization, student government escaped the money-making dilemma (i.e. bakesale, car-wash bakesale) and concentrated on charity projects such as the Christmas drive. Although a few jealous souls may have nominated the Senators and Representatives for the "Class Dodgers of the Year Award" because their meetings were held on class time, the organization at least merited the recognition of working a minor miracle—holding together a menagerie of four distinct, and at times hostile, species of students—the freshman, the sophomore, the junior, and that strangest animal of all, the senior.

Bill Orme and Pam White work long hours after school on the Christmas Drive in the Student Government office.

National Honor Society brought National Players to WTW

The National Honor Society Fine Arts Committee brought the U. S. Drum and Bugle Corps to Woodson. Here they have just finished presenting the Pageant of flags.

The National Honor Society represented and advocated character, scholarship, leadership, and service in personal actions. To instill these qualities in students at WTW was not the Society's only objective, but to make them effective in a way that would influence others to improve their standards.

Throughout the school, the NHS Fine Arts Committee tried to develop a general taste for cultural activities. During January, the U. S. Drum and Bugle Corps presented the famous Flag Pageant in honor of our nation's fight for independence. In March, the National Players appeared here in Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice." National Symphony Orchestra concerts throughout the year, featuring renowned piano and violin soloists at WTW. Ushers for these and other events were provided by the Honor Society. Tutoring was another service designed for the student body.

Inductions were the most formal affair sponsored by the NHS. Inductees were honored at receptions, where Mr. Woodson presented them their membership cards.

Jim Strawinsky speaks on loyalty at the National Honor Society inductions causing the Junior Class to re-evaluate their goals and shift nervously in their seats.

Argument is a euphemism when it comes to the debate team. Cavalier debaters have spit out arguments that would have put the Senate to shame. Some subjects can be argued quietly and indifferently. But the subject of money touches that certain nerve, especially when it comes from one's own pocket book. The topic for debate this year was the battered-over question of the merits of direct foreign aid. The affirmative and negative teams, equipped with reams of note cards, bantered the facts and figures over and over again until the team had the skill to perform a first class debate. But the facts and figures were only part of the debate. They often go in one ear and out the other, and most laymen mistrust them. The skillful debater uses his voice as his chief instrument of persuasion, and can sway his audience as effectively with his tone and sincerity as with his facts and figures. The question of foreign aid is still unresolved in the minds of our lawmakers. The Debate Team tackled it and brought out fresh ideas and approaches. Are you listening Mr. President?

The Cavalier Corps kept Woodson's many students in line

Somebody had to do the dirty jobs. It takes more than the average goody-two-shoes to tackle such unpopular duties as a lunch line bumper or a monitor. It takes a student with a little pride in his school and himself, a little of that special kind of nerve, and a lot of muscle. Nobody loves a litterbug, but there is a vast gap between condemning the act and correcting it. Cavalier Corps members made themselves responsible for the actions of each student in the school. More than one offender felt that iron grip on his shoulder, turned to face that redresser of wrongs in a Woodson blue sweater admonishing, "You were planning to pick up that gum wad, weren't you, fella?!?" The culprits have learned to beware of that ever present figure in his royal blue sweater and to avoid his eagle eye. The plainclothesmen move in. Big Brother is watching.

All it took was talent. The Page was the stamping ground for Woodson's literati, inspired young poets and "prosets," and budding artists and photographers. The Page was the quintessence of Cavalier literary talent. This magazine was composed of the best of the best in Cavalier literary talent. It covered almost every aspect of writing, art, and photography, from short stories to blank verse poetry, from sculpture to painting. Pictures and photographs complemented stories, poetry and thoughts, as the writing enhanced the art. Although quality determined the final choices to be entered, originality was the most sought after quality. And The Page was brimming with novelties. The magazines excavated unexpected talent from unexpected sources and brought out the best in Cavalier minds.

Cavalcade staff recorded WTW's current events for students

In its fifth year of publication, the CAVALCADE kept Woodson well informed with timely news, interesting features, and powerful editorials. A new student advertising section was included this year, adding to the ever-increasing importance of our newspaper.

Cavaliers were urged to take advantage of "Focus" an action line for students to speak out on things they don't like. A complete and detailed account of scores and events of all our games were listed in the Sports Section. Student Government announcements were made, and foreign exchange students were introduced. Dances, plays, and musicals were advertised and controversial subjects such as Fraternities and the delightful art of skipping were approached.

In the past the CAVALCADE has received several national awards for its "journalistic excellence." The 66-67 staff successfully undertook the responsibility of keeping it at that outstanding level.

W.T. WOODSON FOOTBALL

At a first glance of the yearbook room, just any passer-by would claim the place a disaster area. It was a room with an over-abundance of waste paper, a severe lack of rulers and ball point pens, and was, in general, a spectacular example of confusion. But this could only be a surface examination. Underneath the daily hubbub, one could discover hard working editors, dedicated assistants, and a lot of talent.

The '67 Cavalier staff started out on its "mission" in March of '66. Chris Wright, editor-in-chief, and Mr. Williams, faculty advisor, planned training sessions for the new staff, and soon the junior members were slinging around exotic terms like "bleeding in the gutter" as if by second nature.

Section editors organized various aspects of Woodson's life

Each day the staff met in Cafeteria B during 6th period. The copy staff worked to make routine facts readable, while the layout staff searched for rulers and designed pages. Mrs. Martin aided the business staff in keeping track of subscriptions and bills. As each deadline rolled around, words in anguish poured from the mouths of section editors, "But I don't have enough pictures or information . . . " At this the photographers whipped out their cameras, snapped pictures, and developed them in their new darkroom. Thus, as if by a miracle, the '67 Cavlier was born out of confusion, litter, and a lot of pure devotion.

History Club members travelled to Harper's Ferry this year

Controversy caused by the U. S. situation in Viet Nam became the most important topic discussed in the Forum on American History this year. Films and tapes, made by a member's parent in that war-torn country, were presented frequently at meetings. To alternate with them, programs were given on areas of individual interest by other students. Everyday activities and cultural influences that have become vital parts of the "American tradition" were found, searched, and literally ground up to see why they were so important. Major events of the year included a trip to Harper's Ferry and decorating the Social Studies Work Center with an old-fashioned holiday theme.

The world's history is a melting pot of dates, people, places, and ideologies that can use only three verb tenses—past, present, and future. American history encompasses all of these elements, plus the folklore that has made this country great.

As the projectionist leans forward to earnestly explain a Viet Nam slide, his face lights with an eerie glow from the lamp.

International Club brought Hanh and Irene to W.T. Woodson

The American Field Service Club and its exchange students assisted greatly in increasing international understanding.

The AFS Club's fund-raising efforts helped to open the doors of WTW to foreign exchange students. Several major projects were undertaken to achieve this goal. The members started the year with faculty and school-wide bake sales and concluded it with the New York Times newspaper sales.

Kathy Smith, Woodson's AFS representative abroad this year, spent her senior year in Italy. Italy came to Woodson too—but in the delightful form of Irene Ricci, and from Vietnam, with Trinh Quang Hanh.

Latin Club co-sponsored the Saturnalia here at Woodson

The Frogs was produced by Woodson's Latin Club for the Virginia Junior Classical Convention to prove a point—the Latin Club had not relinquished its importance in modern society. Throughout history, the classics had followed mankind's development and influenced the greatest eras; multitudes of medical records, histories, and texts were written in this tongue for ages. Members participated in "Convivium Latinum", the Latin Banquet; like many clubs at WTW, they constructed a float for Homecoming. After acting as co-sponsors for the International Ball and the "Saturnalia" (Christmas Party) for the Fairfax County Latin clubs, the organization took independent action like their ancient predecessors and enjoyed a refreshing springtime picnic.

Viva Le Fleur-de-Lis. Under the guidance of Mlle. Morrison, the French Club instilled in its members enjoyment, rather than mere learning of French culture.

During the College Board exams the French Club provided hungry "participants" of the tests with nourishment to help them through the day. In February they joined the German and Spanish Clubs for the International Dinner, making a successful evening. In February they ventured to "Avignon Freré" to test their taste buds on "real" French food, and try their hand at conversing with the waiters. They closed the year with a spring picnic featuring frommage et le pain and beaucoup de vin!

Collaborating with the foreign language and AFS Club, Fleur-de-Lis helped to sponsor the Mardi Gras Dance. Proceeds from this affair financed foreign exchange students.

Spanish Club initiated a tutoring service for Spanish students

Aquí se hablan español—porque esto es un club para los gentes inteligentes, ¿verdad? If you happened to be one of those talented people who could translate that . . . well, you are certainly in the right club! . . . ¿no?

Going into its fifth year, the Spanish Club has proven to be very active. Their excursions to the National Art Gallery to study the paintings of Velazquez, Goya, and Miro, and to the Colony Theater to see the movie "Las Gemelas" proved to be quite rewarding. The club also sponsored the inter-club soccer team and began a tutoring service for all interested Spanish students.

Their purpose was to promote understanding of the Spanish culture and to enhance the study of Spanish through actual contact with her people and art mediums.

Jon Rumble, behind all those whiskers and the debonair English appearance, watches a dramatic scene from the Drama Club's "Charlie's Aunt."

Emotions rise in a particularly dramatic scene of the Drama Club's overwhelming presentation of the popular play, "Charlie's Aunt."

Dudley Wilson takes a bow, and well deserved, after his terrific performance in "Charlie's Aunt," one of the Drama Club's productions.

The Drama Club's "Charlie's Aunt" drew large audiences

"All the world's a stage and all the men and women merely players; they each have their entrances and exits."

The Drama Club was no exception. Many newcomers appeared on stage along with the "veterans" during the 66-67 interim. Those who didn't perform were active backstage with makeup and scenery.

Their first production of the season had Woodson's auditorium ringing with laughter. "Charlie's Aunt," with Dudley Wilson playing the lead role, brought many exclamations of "It was hilarious," and "How cute!" The spring production, "The Bat," was termed successful, but was given at the inopportune time of the Tournament games. In January students attended the impressive and exciting Thespian inductions.

At the close of the year the Drama Club and Thespian Society could reflect on a prosperous year . . . a job well-done.

Mrs. Bedinger wears a slight look of disgust, as she tries to create the correct mood for "Death Takes a Holiday," the year's Junior Class play. Mrs. Bedinger often takes a part in Woodson's dramatic productions.

No sissy sport is bridge. It is a real knock down drag out game as rugged as football, as brutal as wrestling. You don't believe? Well a dented shin is as much a symbol of a bridge club enthusiast as a cauliflower ear is of a wrestler. It is a real below board sport. Bridge club members met every morning to improve their skill and signals, but their planned tournament never materialized. The club was formed for bridge for the sake of bridge, and it did not bombard the student body with bakesales and other money making gimmicks. Is that any way to run a club? You bet it is!

Chess Club members puzzled over bishops, pawns and knights

Checkmate!! Now—that makes 2,481 paper clips you owe me!! These occasional cries of "Check" and "Checkmate" broke through the quiet of W. T. Woodson's thought-filled Chess Club. The atmosphere was always pensive as members worked to outwit their opponents.

For lovers of the game this Chess Club offered an opportunity to practice and improve their skills through intra-club tournaments. Their participation in the Northern Virginia Chess League helped bring more Cavalier-knights into a king's realm. Check!!

The busy hands of Chess Club members strive for victory with strategic maneuvers and counter-actions made by momentary enemies.

Utter silence prevailed while Woodson's aspiring mathematicians feverishly scribbled equations across blackboards. Led by math teacher, Mr. Bell, interested students delved wholeheartedly into a complex realm of imaginary numbers, calculus, interpolation, and probability.

Provided with the opportunity to improve mathematical abilities and apply the knowledge of recent theories and discoveries, members gained the satisfaction of construing math for their peers. In its second year of existence, the club has succeeded in stimulating a general interest in numbers at Woodson. In addition to maintaining a bulletin board in the math wing, the club met bimonthly to discuss problems, curiosities, and facts. Students learned through participation rather than observation as their minds were molded to logic and order.

Math Team challenged other area high schools at meets

To coordinate with the FTA, FHA, FSA, and MCC, a Future Mathematicians of America could have almost developed at Woodson—and it did (in a way), in the form of the Math Team. This group of students was literally devoted to the expansion of mathematical processes and systematic thinking.

As a team, the organization competed in interscholastic math meets every other Thursday. Four high school teams would congregate at one place, allotting a possible 25 points to each group as high goal. Five people would be given five problems and three to five minutes to solve each problem. The rating for this would be one point per person. The final score from each meet were related to the entire county as a means of devising better types of competition and just keeping track of the concentrated response to higher mathematics.

"Hey, you've got the wrong formula," exclaims Math Team member, Chris Wright, "it's the square of the hypotenuse equals the sum of the squares of the two adjoining sides."

Future nurses found opportunities to pursue medical careers

An obese young girl looked ruefully at herself in a full length mirror. "I think I'd better see a dietician." In another part of the country, a little boy threw a temper tantrum while his mother tried to drag him into the dentist's office.

Every day, all over the nation and around the world, people are receiving help from technical medics. These medical specialists—pediatricians, optometrists, psychologists, obstetricians, and many others—study for a minimum of eight years after being introduced to the multitude of opportunities by organizations such as MCC. A trip to UVA and lectures by guests helped members to decide which field to pursue, or if a medical profession was for them.

Cosmetology Club learned new ways of beautifying others

Amid hair pins, rollers, and hair spray, cosmetology club members put their heads together to create award winning coiffures. During the year, they had demonstrations from five area beauty salons. After visiting various shops, the group managed to get new styling hints and techniques pinned down. They traveled to nursing homes on field trips to set the ladies' hair and give them manicures when desired. At the end of the year, the club presented a fashion show. There, new ideas in the world of hair fashions were introduced with coordinated, "jet-age" outfits.

Cosmetology student Debby Howard manicures Patty Amaral's nails, and modest Patty shies away in embarrassment, as she knows she's far too stunning for our camera.

The FSA and Model Rocket Clubs studied various sciences

Woodson's candidates-in-training to put a man on the moon or blow up the world assembled together in the Future Scientists Club. For those who turn up their noses at the mention of extracurricular academics, the FSA proved at least to themselves that science can be fun.

The Future Scientists of America was a group of Woodson's most promising engineers for the progress of the future. Who knows? Among that crew of textbook-toting teenagers is an Albert Einstein in the making. Or an Edward Teller.

The Model Rocket Club lifted off this year with a display of the skill of the members. Rockets were pitted against each other in meets and contests of the accuracy and distance of the models.

Cavalettes' performances instilled school spirit in Cavaliers

Field lights went out and a magnified hush filled the stadium. Suddenly, thirty fiery balls, on the tips of twirling batons, astonished the puzzled crowd. What was happening? It was Homecoming 1966 and the Cavalette Baton Corps was presenting a special routine at the preliminary pep rally. As some of the foremost representatives of Woodson in sports and talent, these fifteen girls exhibited exceptional school spirit, responsibility, poise, self-confidence, and an ability to get along with others. The Cavalettes performed precision routines for Extravaganza '67, pep rallies, and sports events. But they had one major objective—to promote the Woodson Way by aiding the community and worthwhile charities, and giving a good impression of Woodson, Fairfax County, and Virginia on the annual Band Exchange Trip.

Susie Ludtke awaits the sound of the bell in eager anticipation while she relishes the thought of standing up during her two-hour bus ride home.

"What? Woodson students actually going to an away game?" Yes! This year Cavaliers had buses, sponsored by the Pep Club, to and from our rival schools.

Little "gimmicks" like wooden blocks for clappers, and paper bags to blow up in the stands were other examples of Pep Club spirit. The members decorated the goal posts for football games, and cleaned up afterwards. They lined the halls with "Mash Madison" and "Take Tournament" posters, advertising games. Camouflaging "infamous" cafeterias for Sports Award banquets, the members performed another public service for our school. Cavalier Charlie, of course, made his entrance at many of our games, marking each appearance with an uproar from the stands. They also packed the pre-game pep rallies, the Pep Club movies, and brought an overall sense of spirit to Woodson.

Mr. Lawrence looks on as the Cavalier marching band performs one of its spectacular half-time exhibitions.

The WTW BAND bussed Pennsylvania for an exchange concert

Under the direction of Mr. Lawrence, the Cavalier Bands provided musical entertainment and appreciation throughout the year. The hard task of molding over one-hundred instruments into a unit of marching melody required tedious hours of patient practice.

During football season, the Cavalier Marching Band performed at half-time shows, pep rallies, and assemblies to stir Woodson spirit. With the advent of winter, the Marching Band retreated indoors to rehearse for the Christmas Concert, Fine Arts performance, and Extravaganza.

The spring was spent preparing for the District IV Band Festival, where Woodson scored high ratings again. The major band activity of the year was an exciting exchange with a Pennsylvania band. As an ending to a busy year, the Symphonic Band performed at graduation exercises.

Our Candid Camera caught Mr. Lawrence, Cheryl Hailey, Traci Hill, and Linda Floyd in the act of being themselves.

Talented Woodson choirs sang at Extravaganza

"The halls were alive with the sound of music," as the W. T. Woodson choirs practiced each day. People couldn't help but stop and listen to the tones that wafted from behind those closed doors. A crowd would gather in the auditorium at lunch time to hear the madrigals rehearse.

Throughout the year all the choirs performed, and were brought to a climax in the Extravaganza. In November, a Thanksgiving Concert was given to commemorate the day of the First Feast. December brought the lively Christmas Concert, followed by the Select Girls singing at the impressive Honor Society inductions. Joining ranks with the Band, the entire "fleet" of choirs presented "Moments to Remember" in the Extravaganza of 1967. At the first signs of Spring, again they reunited with the Band and presented the Spring assembly. For the last production of the year, the Symphonic Choir sang at Baccalaureate.

The Freshman I and II girls choirs were primarily for practice, but performed at the Extravaganza. The Symphonic Choir, composed of "The Best," performed at many memorable events and ceremonies. The Madrigals were made up of members of the Select Girls and boys from the Symphonic Choirs.

As the year drew to a close, the choirs looked back on a very successful year.

The Key Club began the year with an all-out effort to serve their school and to promote fellowship throughout the student body. After inducting new members, they started their lengthy task of sorting, alphabetizing, compiling and selling a new 66-67 Woodson directory. President Fred Ullman organized Key Clubbers to perfection as they presented their third annual pep rally and sock-hop—Blue and White Night.

In addition to the traditional projects upon which the Key Club embarks annually, they also joined the Keyette Club in creating a Homecoming float, working at Junior Village with the underprivileged children, and distributing "Back Seat Drivers' Licenses." Their major project of the year consisted of carving hall passes for the Social Studies and English teachers.

Then, to highlight the year, members and their sponsor, Mr. Davidson, attended the National Key Club Convention in Roanoke, Virginia.

An apple for the teacher marked the commencement of the 66-67 school year, as Keyettes worked busily with red construction paper and scissors to send a note of welcoming cheer to each teacher. President Raleigh Shreve and sponsors Mrs. Brown and Miss Murray aided the group in accomplishing their service projects throughout the year. November was devoted to Safe Driving Week and was initiated with a barrage of posters, assemblies, bumper stickers, and Safe Drivers' Licenses. Amidst the bustle of the Christmas season, Keyettes devoted time to making stuffed toys for the Children's Hospital, selling candy canes, and composing letters to U. S. soldiers in Viet Nam. Keyettes ushered in spring with yellow daffodils in commemoration of D-Day. Finally, the girls ended a year of service at the National Convention in Roanoke, where ideas were exchanged, elections held, and new projects decided.

Art Guild made jewelry and stationery for sale at Woodson

Kathe Eastman works on a picture of a girl made from dried corn, peas, rice, and twine. Such masterpieces decorated the WTW art wing for the students pleasure.

With a splash of color here, and a larger one there, the WTW Art Guild was able to demonstrate their artistic talent in projects undertaken to beautify our school and to promote interest and opportunity in art.

The major activities sponsored by this club were the designing and selling of stationery and jewelry to the student body and the decoration of the cafeterias. The spring art show was done in coordination with Fine Arts Weekend and was open to all interested students.

Folk Music Guild entertained students during the lunch shifts

Last year, a group of people got together and formed a club. They named it the Folk Music Guild. They deemed it necessary that Woodson have a club that would provide an outlet for an interest in folk music. Thus, the club was formed.

This year, the club gained new members and became an active part of Woodson. In November, they gave a Thanksgiving concert, and a public concert in January. During the lunch shifts they held "Concerts in Miniature," and bake sales helped bring special speakers and performers to entertain at club meetings.

The Guild represents an active interest in folk music and would like to encourage its expansion in the future.

The Folk Guitar Club twanged its way through the year

Peter, Paul and Mary? Simon and Garfunkel? No, it's the W. T. Woodson Folk Guitar Club in action. Members participated in all activities as well as having guest speakers and performers entertain at club meetings. In March, a major concert was given in which "Bill and Michele" performed after school.

During the course of the year, they had picnics, workshops, and demonstrations by members of the club. This helped them reach their goal . . . an effort to bring people together with a common interest in folk music.

Every moment on the moment, whether wandering down the halls or sitting in class, you could hear at least three people complaining about the same teacher. "I wish Mr. So-and-So wouldn't give pop quizzes," or "Darn it! Will Miss Blank NEVER learn to leave kids who are holding hands alone?!" Sometimes, a serious, naive student chipped in, "If you don't like it, do something about it!" So, ambitious students who did want to do something about it joined the FTA. Besides becoming acquainted with the broad fields offered in teaching and classroom procedures, club members learned that this profession encountered more than pounding the rhyme scheme of Italian sonnets or the principles of algebraic factoring into sleepy heads. In some instances, they would be required to help individual children—this was apparent after a speaker and films on mental retardation. The club tried to "eliminate" unsuitable prospects—it would take a firm but understanding person to overcome the attitude, "Teachers—who needs 'em?"

The Breakfast Club was sponsored by FHA again this year

One of the most controversial topics of the day is "conformity vs. individuality", and it also happened to be the FHA's project this year. FHA, a national organization of junior and senior high school students studying homemaking, provided opportunities for developing individual and group initiative in performing activities related to the home.

In November, the year was highlighted with a speech by a representative of the Patricia Stevens School; the subject—"Charming Individuality." But the girls also took an active part in regular school activities. They made the renowned "Cavalier Charm Chain" and decorated the goal posts for Homecoming in October. After contributing stuffed toys to the Christmas Drive, the FHA wound up a successful, highly active year with National FHA Week on April 2-8.

Stamp and Coin enthusiasts organized after school this year

Individual interests vary from one end of the kaleidoscope of life to the other, a fact which is proved by the existence of the Stamp and Coin Club at Woodson High School. At regular meetings, guest speakers gave lectures on the historic value of famous and little known stamps and coins. Members were advised how to proceed with their own collections—which items to disregard, which ones to trade, and which ones to keep under lock and key. The markings and colorings of important pieces were also pointed out. In the final judgment of their efforts, club members decided that their stamp and coin collections have some merits—at least there was some lucrative value in all the work exerted in establishing such an assemblage.

Assistants gained experience as faculty profited from their help

"Hello, W. T. Woodson High School. Student assistant speaking. May I help you?"

" . . . Thirteen . . . fourteen . . . there! Fifteen books shelved! Now all I have to do is file a thousand and one cards!"

"Mrs. Heglar, are we still letting students order class rings? This girl was out sick . . . "

These were the many voices of student assistants at Woodson High.

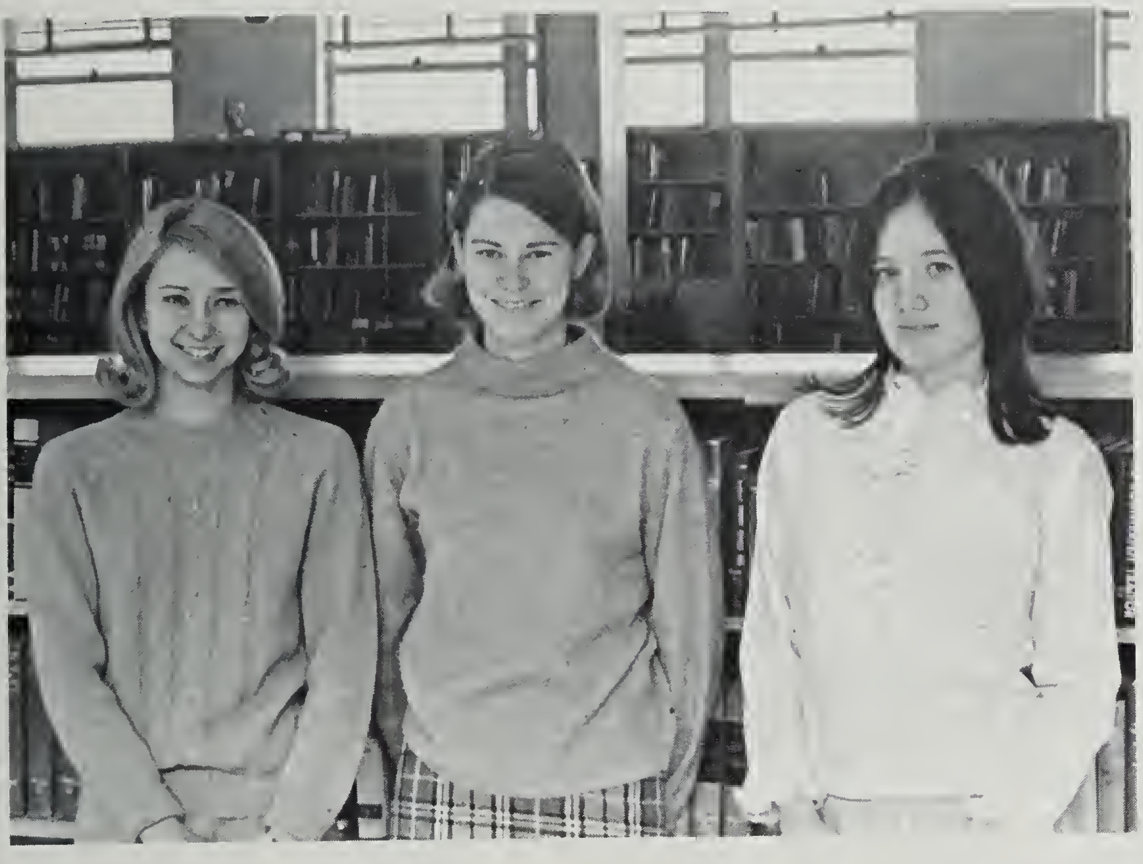
Office attendants learned to conduct school-related affairs



Students who worked in the main office, guidance, and the P.E. Department provided invaluable services to the school by answering phones, confirming appointments, delivering messages, and filing—duties that would almost triple the normal load of the personnel if there were no assistants.

Lab assistants aided students with experiments, graded papers (a deplorable job), and literally took over the class when the teacher had to leave. Library assistants also specialized. New books would never have been ordered if someone else hadn't been around to alphabetize cards, check the hundreds of books that went out in daily circulation, and write overdue notices.

Christian ideals were upheld by the Tri-Hi-Y and the Hi-Y

December marked the beginning of both Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y. Though both clubs started a little late, their busy activities made up for lost time.

The main purpose stated by the clubs was to create, maintain, and extend high standards of Christian character throughout the school and community. The Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y, like the Keys and Keyettes, are service clubs.

Stepping stone . . .
The link between Now and Then
A magnetic meeting of minds
Hands reaching out in feeling
        Expanding . . .
        Deepening . . .
        Elevating . . .
People have learned through people.
